PUTS CITY IN SPECIAL CLASS ON U. S. ORDERS

Cleveland OPM Director Says Mansfield Should Be Given 'Special Consideration.'

POINTS TO FURLOUGHS

Recommendation Follows Visit To Mansfield of Committee On Labor Supply.

Recognizing the seriousness of the industrial unemployment problem facing Mansfield, Edward Keenan, chairman of the OPM regional labor supply committee, said today that he had recommended that the Mansfield area receive special consideration in "farming out" defense orders.

Keenan said the furloughing of 1,000 workers at Westinghouse in the past three weeks because of domestic production curtailment was largely responsible for his special recommendation to the OPM.

Keenan's labor supply committee conferred here last Tuesday with industrial and labor leaders in an attempt to find a solution to the unemployment situation. His board took a complete report of the Mansfield picture back to Cleveland for study.

Pointing out that the situation in Mansfield is serious and requires immediate action by OPM, Frank B. Kohnstamm, in charge of Westinghouse sales and advertising, said yesterday that action taken to brighten the city's outlook evidently came about "because of the effort made to focus attention on Mansfield as a town which would be seriously affected by a curtailment of consumer durable goods production."

He said that "the OPM approach to the problem together with the company's own efforts present an encouraging outlook."

Meanwhile, Westinghouse officials today awaited further information about a government proposal to divert a part of the plant's facilities to munitions work.

The OPM said yesterday in Washington that the Westinghouse plant in Mansfield was one of 34

Fort Captured By Invaders, New York Bombarded During Mock Battle; Invasion Forces Finally Are Annihilated

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — In a mock battle, marked with realism, Fort Tilden, the key coast defense unit guarding New York, was captured early today by enemy infantry and its mammoth 16-inch guns turned on New York City.

Theoretically the invasion forces poured between 30 and 40 rounds of shells weighing 2,300 pounds each, into Manhattan's skyscrapers. Also, in theory, the invaders finally were annihilated and the fort recaptured.

The results of the mock assault included "uncounted civilian casualties and millions of dollars worth of property damage," according to Brig. Gen. Philip S. Gage, commander of the city's harbor defenses.

Twelve hundred soldiers from Fort Hancock, N. J., made up the attacking force of the Black army. They stormed Fort Tilden at 10:36 p. m. from the sea in 40 small power craft identified as "Higgins boats," a new type of landing boat that proved its value.

The sea-borne troops were aided by "parachute" troops who had landed and captured nearby Floyd Bennett airport.

The fort's garrison of 500 men was on the alert and opened fire when the Black troops came into sight. Machine guns, anti-aircraft guns and rifles were used by the defending

Fresh German Troops Hurled Into Struggle

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(AP)—German attacks in the Vyazma sector were repulsed overnight and the invaders suffered heavy losses, the Soviet government declared today, but the Red army acknowledged that its situation still was critical on that vital front.

(By International News Service)

MOSCOW—Latest front-line dispatches to the Red army newspaper Red Star admitted today that the Russian position on the Vyazma sector of the central front is "serious."

"The enemy has thrown in new divisions and has achieved progress through local numerical superiority," Red Star admitted.

The reports added that German losses in men "continue to be high."

Red Star said masses of Russian reinforcements accompanied by a "colossal war machine" are moving up to the front to aid Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's central armies, and added:

"The reinforcing is proceeding with clockwork precision. Fascist airplanes vainly are trying to halt it. The reserves are all fresh, seasoned troops under proven commanders and are equipped with the most modern weapons."

This grave news was published in Moscow after the high command had announced new German assaults on the Vyazma sector, 140 miles west of Moscow, were repulsed and that continued fierce warfare was in progress all along the front.

(German military authorities also asserted the German ring at Vyazma is resulting in rapid annihilation of trapped Russian forces and that a large number of Russian divisions caught around Vyazma are "bleeding severely."

(Even in London, British military authorities expressed belief a considerable number of Russian divisions have been encircled in the Yrbansk and Orel areas and that the situation of Soviet divisions in the Melitopol sector appears precarious.)

JAPS WILL SEND THREE SHIPS TO GET NATIONALS

2,000 Expected to Return to Nippon; Americans to Get Passage From Japan.

(By United Press)

TOKYO—The foreign office announced today that three ships would sail soon for the United States to evacuate Japanese nationals

The British and American embassies and the Canadian legation were privately advising their nationals to take advantge of the sailings and go home.

The Tatsuta Maru will sail next Wednesday from Yokahama for San Francisco, via Honolulu, it was said. The Nitta Maru will sail Oct. 20 for Vancouver and Seattle and the Taiyo Maru will said Oct. 22 for Honolulu.

Japanese ships have not sailed for the United States since shortly after President Roosevelt froze Japanese credits

The foreign office said 2,000 Japanese would return home from the United States aboard the liners, and that American-born Japanese now in Japan would be enabled to sail for the United States. It was understood that other American citizens who wanted to get back to the United States also would be carried.

The question of cargoes was not immediately clarified, but it was assumed they would carry several million dollars worth of American goods held at Kobe when Japan froze United States credits, and that they would bring back frozen Japanese goods in the United States.

The Domei news agency had said the ships were not sailing to evacuate nationals, but, "as the result of negotiations with the United States government for arrangements for transportation." But the foreign office said the ships would evacuate nationals.

The foreign office announcement followed increasingly bitter press attacks on the United States and Britain.

CHECK ROBBERY

Police Told Wounded Suspect Involved In Crime Here.

Mansfield police were checking today with Indianapolis authorities in belief that 40-year-old Carl Hutchins, seriously injured there last night in an attempt to elude police, was connected with a robbery here.

Hutchins, who is accused of 47 robberies, 18 of which were in Ohio, 18 in Louisville, Ky., and eight in St. Louis, was trapped at the home of his brother, Clarence, in Indianapolis by St. Louis and Indianapolis officers.

Brought down by gunfire as he attempted to escape, Hutchins was in Indianapolis city hospital today under police guard.

Mansfield police had no record of Hutchins being arrested here but were checking with Indianapolis authorities to get details of a robbery which Minton M. Haight, a partner of Hutchins, said was committed here.

Haight, captured in St. Louis several months ago, said that Hutchins had been his partner in the 47 robberies.

FOES OPPOSING QUICK PASSAGE ON SHIP ARMING

Concede Measure to Pass by Big Majority But Hit At 'Railroading.'

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Administration plans to rush the bill authorizing arming of merchant ships to final passage in the house next Friday, after two days of secret committee hearings, today brought vigorous protests from foes of the measure.

Despite their protests, however, opposition leaders conceded that the bill will be passed by a substantial majority.

"Of course they want to railroad the bill through the house without adequate hearings or fair and full debate," said Rep. Tinkham (R.) Mass., slated to lead Republican opposition in the foreign affairs committee.

"I don't think they will get away with their steam-roller program. I concede they have the votes to pass the bill, but we will demand an opportunity to show the country that the bill is another step toward war."

Chairman Bloom (D.), N. Y., of the foreign affairs committee, defended the committee program, which calls for hearings on Monday and Tuesday, opening of debate on Thursday and passage on Friday. He plans to call Secretary of State Hull, Secretary of the Navy Knox, Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, and Admiral Emory Land, chairman of the maritime commission, as witnesses.

"We cannot delay in this matter," said Bloom. "There would be nothing gained in holding public hearings. The government witnesses, who must base their statements on secret in-

800-MILE NAZI FRONT BOMBED

RAF Pours Explosives on Germany, Nazi-Held Lands After Lull.

(By United Press)

LONDON—Great Britain threw hundreds of planes into attacks on military objectives along an 800-mile front in Germany, Holland, Belgium and France during the night after a nine-day spell of bad weather, which prevented Royal Air Force offensive operations on any but the smallest scale.

Great Britain bombing planes, each laden with tons of bombs of heaviest type, ranged from the German Ruhr and Rhineland and Rotterdam, Holland, to Ostend and Dunkirk on the invasion coast and Bordeaux at the mouth of the Garonne river in southwestern France, attacking factories, railroads, docks and other objectives.

The Ruhr and the Rhineland bore the heaviest attacks, it was made known, and the attacks along the Netherlands, Belgian and French coasts were subsidiary, aimed primarily at docks.

An air ministry communique said that powerful British air forces attacked Cologne and the Ruhr while subsidiary attack

Committee to Make Survey, Organize Volunteer Corps For Emergency Work.

Mobilization of all local facilities available to aid in the formation of a civilian defense program for Mansfield and vicinity was planned at a meeting of the recently named defense committee last night at the American Legion home.

Judge G. E. Kalbfliesch, general chairman, said the committee started a survey of civilian defense programs in other cities and also began to list local organizations such as the Red Cross, police and fire departments and the American Legion, which may help in setting up a local defense plan.

Kalbfleisch said that the Richland County Red Cross group would very shortly start instruction of all Mansfield firemen in first aid principles. Using these trained firemen and other first aid students in the city, the chairman believes that hundreds of Mansfielders could be taught first aid lessons very quickly.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va — (AP) — Seventeen persons aboard a southbound Atlantic Greyhound bus were injured early today when it skidded off the highway and landed in a gulley near Bastian, Va., 10 miles south of here.

Rescue crews armed with acetylene torches required five hours to cut through the wreckage and remove all the passengers. Two persons were reported injured seriously.

Has 'Conqueror's Smallpox' Set In to Plague Hitler?

It's Disease That Has Affected All Dictators In Their Effort to Alter World's Course.

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

WASHINGTON—Adolf Hitler has finally shown symptoms of the disease that has affected all the dictators who preceded him in world history.

It's conqueror's smallpox.

In this war, conqueror's smallpox is a third front. The first is the English Channel. The second is Russia.

Conqueror's smallpox is the malady brought on by people who are willing to risk their lives to protest conquest. So far, Hitler has not caught the disease in its most virulent form. Most international observers suspect the outbreak in European states may be premature, and will not become violent at this time.

There are several reasons:

Hitler has more powerful antidotes than any previous dictator ever had. The airplane and the tank can do more to stop revolt than any other weapons of history. Rifles and small arms are pop guns against planes and tanks

In the second place, the outbreak is not well enough organized to impede Hitler's war efforts. It is too sporadic.

Meanwhile Hitler has an excuse to kill off leaders in nations where revolts have occurred, together with their "tools."

How and why no dictator ever escapes this disease is a mystery peculiar to history. Tons and tons of literature have been written about it, but none of the explanations is wholly satisfactory.

Outstanding example of a ruler who suffered from conqueror's smallpox is Charles V., the first king who actually tried to set up a United States of Europe.

HEAVY FROST

Mercury Tumbles to 34, Only 2 Degrees Above Freezing.

Mansfield had its first heavy frost this morning as the thermometer dropped to a low of 34 degrees, only two above freezing.

Fair and not quite so cool weather was predicted by the weatherman for tonight while tomorrow is expected to be fair and warmer.

Highest point for the mercury yesterday was 68 degrees while the average temperature was 51, five degrees lower than the 16-year average. By noon today, the temperature had reached only 50 degrees. No precipitation was recorded.

Heavy frost hit the city and Richland county early this morning but arrived too late to do too much damage to crops, according to George B. Ganyard, county agent.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Funeral services will be held here Sunday, Oct. 19, for William Mather Bishop, 23, a member of the American Eagle squadron and the son of Dr. Robert H. Bishop, director of University hospitals, and Mrs. Bishop.

Mrs. Bishop received a letter yesterday from Air Vice Marshal D. Dalzell McClean, Canada, saying that her son "is now considered to have lost his life as a result of enemy action whilst on route to the United Kingdom."

Bishop was aboard a ship which was torpedoed in the North Atlantic last month.

QUIZ SUSPECTS

Kentucky Officers Arrive In Texas For Miley Probe.

FORT WORTH, Tex. —(U.P.)— Kentucky officers arrive today to question the "hottest suspect so far" in the double murder of Marion Miley, 27, champion woman golfer, and her mother.

Fayette county Sheriff Ernest Thompson and Lexington Police Chief Austin B. Price were expected to conduct preliminary questioning here before returning Thomas Penny, 33, and Leo H. Gaddis, 40, to Lexington, where at the Country club on the early Sunday morning of Sept. 28 two robbery-bent intruders killed the Mileys.

Identification experts here said that, as nearly as could be determined, the fingerprints of the suspects checked with those found on the blood-smeared walls of the Mileys' apartment over the club.

Chamber Enrolls 681, Mop-Up Opens In Member Drive

The 1941 membership drive of the Mansfield Chamber of Commerce came to an official close last night with workers 69 members short of their 750 goal but chamber officials were confident that the "clean-up" work, already under way, would put the campaign "over the top."

Charles L. Kafer, campaign chairman, said that the 36 team workers had reported 681 new and received memberships at the deadline yesterday at 6 p. m. The drive opened Tuesday morning.

Kafer said that 84 new members and 597 renewals were made by the 36 teams participating in the campaign. Thirty-six workers were listed as quota-busters.

Rogers M. Gray and C. N. Shultz formed the team making the highest number of points while teams made up of L. B. Hamilton and O. C. McCormick and W. B. Ford and H. H. Miller were credited with being the first to make their quota.

Listed as "quota-busters" were: Gray, Shultz, Ford, Miller, McCormick, Hamilton, A. G. Busch, John S. Jones, C. H. Henkel, P. M. Elliot, J. B. Conard, W. A. Proshek, Rev. Grover Swoyer, W. J. Latest War News In Sunday's N-J

Right now the war on the eastern front is reaching a climax—and that means that the biggest battle in all history is being decided. It makes exciting reading. It makes IMPORTANT reading. The Sunday edition of The News-Journal brings you later and more complete news of this titantic fight than you can get anywhere in Mansfield.

Potato as Sea Lion.

But the Sunday edition has its lighter side, too. There's a picture of a potato that looks like a sea lion and of several other freaks of nature.

It's cider making time. Richland county has a bumper crop of apples this year and mills are busy pressing out a record quantity of 'the sweet amber.' Tomorrow you'll read the story of cider making.

Careful Collectors.

A Mansfield school teacher has collected stones from most of the natural showplaces of North America to build an outdoor fireplace in his own backyard. Pictures and story tell about it.

Another Mansfielder has the distinction of insisting that the antiques she collects be useful. Her story and picture appear tomorrow, too.

Trick Ending.

There's news from the defense front. The week is reviewed. Editorial comment, sports round-ups, and society news provide a variety of interest. Colored comics, cross-quiz puzzle, and short story provide amusement. And by the way, tomorrow's is a short story with a trick ending. We challenge you to guess how the plot comes out without peaking at the last paragraphs.

GEN. JOHNSON:

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — There is a deal of cock-eyed stuff still floating over the price-control declarations. Representative Vinson wants to limit profits to 7 per cent of manufacturing cost on defense contracts whether or not with the United States. Vinson has conducted and will continue to conduct an investigation into all defense costs and profits. Thus far he has found some perfectly outrageous percentages of profit — 274 in one case.

Johnson

What he is doing in the way of investigation is one of the healthiest and most necessary moves we could make. Reports of our defense efforts have been made mostly in dollars, and while it can't be said that they don't mean a thing, it can be said that they are very deceptive.

We already know that in the case of building cantonments, costs mounted far out of line with any precedent or reason. There is a good reason to believe that we are getting pitifully little per ton of munitions for the dollars that we spend, and that Hitler probably gets three or four times as much for his armament money as we get for ours.

This of itself is one of our greatest inflationary threats—not to mention the fact that there must be some bottom to Uncle Sam's sock and that we could defeat ourselves on this front alone if somebody doesn't pay some attention to what we are getting for our money.

Vinson apparently proposes to pay a great deal of attention. Let us thank heaven for that.

But this business of "cost plus a percentage of profit" is old and deadly stuff. It was our curse in World War One. As a result we adopted a little less vicious formula—"cost plus a fixed fee."

Here is the difference. If your profit depends, as it does in ordinary competitive commercial life, on costs as low as you get them, you are not apt to go out like a drunken sailor and squander as much as you can to produce an article. You will try to produce it as cheaply as competitive conditions will permit.

But, if you are relieved from all care and responsibility about that and because of a fixed percentage based on costs as the measure of your profits, you not only have no incentive to reduce costs. You have a powerful incentive to push them up because the higher they go, the greater is your profit.

This is not merely theoretical. It stands to reason in human nature and it was amply demonstrated by experience in 1917 and 1918.

The "cost plus a fixed fee" alternative, now more generally used, didn't altogether remove these evils because it still left the contractor with small responsibility for rising costs but, at least, it did not encourage him to boost costs as does the "cost plus a percentage of cost" rule.

It is a difficult and complex problem. But as types and manufacturing costs become more standardized and especially if we can get price and wage control legislation, so that a manufacturer can plan his costs with intelligence and the government can pass on them with equal intelligence, perhaps we can go back to the old competitive system in awarding contracts and then go in with some kind of intelligent corporation tax bill and eliminate all exhorbitant profits due to war.

AFL Votes to Put Skids Under Browne

PRESS FREEDOM IMPERILED, SAYS G. O. P. LEADER

Declares Real Menace Lies In 'Slow Suppression' Within Nation.

(By Associated Press)

LEBANON—Warnings that freedom of the press is imperiled and that the nation's constitutional government is in jeopardy were sounded today by Joseph W. Martin, jr., Republican congressional leader and chairman of the party's national committee.

"Whatever threats may face this nation from power-lustful aggressors abroad; whatever menace may lie in the actions of dictators in lands across the sea, one real danger to our nation here at home lies in the slow but undeniable suppression of freedom of the press," Martin declared.

Martin made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery at the dedication of a memorial plaque presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution to the Western Star, commemorating it as the oldest weekly newspaper west of the Applachian mountains. It was founded in 1806 and now is owned by Congressman Clarence J. Brown of the 7th district.

The occasion, Martin said, was of "special significance at this time when strange doctrines knock at the doors of our national thought for admittance; when foreign philosophers or alleged philosophies of governmental forms, alien to our own are urged upon us."

Those now crying the loudest that the press must be maintained free are those who "would help to impair its freedom in this country," he declared.

Asserting that the bill of rights is in peril, the Republican leader said constitutional government "is in jeopardy right here at home."

"There is not a single more important issue before the American people today than this question of the freedom of the press and the radio, and of free speech.

"It is the very essence of Americanism—it is the very germ and lifespark of liberty, that men should be allowed to express their views and seek peaceably to persuade their fellow citizens to a course of action without being attacked or abused by those in high places in government or elsewhere.

"Where the press is free, and where the great majority of the people can read and write, free government and individual liberties are safe. If the press is kept uncontaminated, unintimidated, unsuppressed, the bill of rights will survive to bless posterity."

CUTS NUMBER OF OFFICIALS FROM 15 TO 13

Reductions In Vice-Presidents Seen as Move to Oust Alleged Extortionist.

(By United Press)

SEATTLE, Wash—The American Federation of Labor apparently had paved the way today for removal from its leadership of George E. Browne, alleged extortionist, by eliminating his job.

Without a dissenting vote, the AFL's 61st annual convention approved an executive council report recommending reduction of the number of vice presidents from 15 to 13.

Browne, who is being tried in New York with William Bioff for allegedly extorting $550,000 from motion picture producers, is president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and is the AFL's 12th vice president. Bioff is the IATSE's west coast representative.

Although the council report said that reduction was suggested because 15 vice presidents made the leadership too unwieldy, it was pointed out unofficially that the move would permit removal of Browne by the simple expedient of not renominating him.

All other vice-presidents would be permitted to retain their jobs. The name of no others had been mentioned for elimination from the renominating list. The 15th officer, Thomas A. Rickert, died three months ago.

The 600 delegates adjourned for the week-end after approving the vice-presidential reduction and a constitutional amendment cutting the per capita tax from two to one and one-half cents per month with the further provision that unions with more than 300,000 members will have to pay into the central organization only one cent for each member over that number.

James M. Duffy of East Liverpool, O., president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, protested the tax cut because it continued a trend of reducing the financial burdens on large unions although it was they, he said, who controlled the federation.

"Within five or six years we will have a worse situation than in the 1934 convention in San Francisco," he said. "Unless we defeat this measure, we will be confronted with a third union organization."

The 1934 convention was the last before formation of the rival Congress of Industrial Organizations.

BROADWAY

Talk of the Town.

IN the new hit musical, "Best Foot Forward," Rosemary Lane plays a movie actress who is invited to a prep school prom—and accepts. The show has only been open a week, but already Rosemary has been deluged with invitations to prep school proms—and her press agent is going to make her accept one of them. . .

Brooks Atkinson, reviewing "Ah, Wilderness!" says of Harry Carey, "If Mr. Carey is plainly more Montana than New York . . ." If, indeed! Harry Carey was born in The Bronx, and is as much a New Yorker as his classmate, Jimmy Walker. Don't let those hosses fool you, Mr. Atkinson.

One of Broadway's fascinating, typical places—Roseland Ballroom—is 22 years old this week. About the age of its average hostess, once called a "dime-a-dance" girl, but reluctant to answer to that name now. A lot of lights have burned and gone out and been replaced in the twinkling signs over Broadway since the dance hall first opened in 1919. A lot of things have changed. The lights spell new names, and girls wear their hair differently, and a dime is worth less now. Nobody even guessed at boogie woogie in that era.

Roseland got its first big splash of publicity when it hired nobility as a drawing card. It advertised for "gentlemen possessing bona fide European titles"—the word "gigolo" was not mentioned—and within the week Broadway flappers were able to skim over the polished parquet with a baron, or a duke.

Two years later, the ballroom staged a "Jazz Wedding" in which even the clergyman did a sprightly two-step while reading the service. . . . When dance marathons were popular, Roseland held an elaborate dance marathon—half on land, half on sea beyond the three-mile limit. . . .

Ruby Keeler was a hostess there, and used to tap dance on Thursday nights.

But above everything, Roseland came to be known as the locale of the Broadway Cinderella story. A lad named Archibald Roberson Graustein, head of the International Paper company, paid a few visits to the place, danced with Claire Patton, and fell in love. They were married, just the way Cinderella and the Prince were married. And that launched an epidemic. Hostesses married department store executives, motor car company vice-presidents, bankers and Yale men.

Literary fellows and college boys are attracted to Roseland. F. Scott Fitzgerald used to hang around so much the doorman let him in for nothing.

Achmed Abdullah, Lucius Beebe, the late Frank Ward O'Malley and Nunnally Johnson have been familiar faces around the dance floor.

Twenty million other paying customers have dented the parquet in the years since 1919, eight billion dance steps have been taken by the patrons. Saturday night is the best night of the week for the dime-a-dance palace, Easter week the best week of the year.

WANTS TALK ON SMEAR CHARGES

Bricker Says He'd Welcome Discussion on Probe Of Ohio's BUC.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker asserted today that he would welcome a conference with federal civil service representatives regarding his recent charges that the New Deal was attempting "to smear" the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation administration.

The governor's statement followed an announcement in Washington that a Republican representative of the civil service commission, Arthur S. Flemming, would confer with Bricker and "personally investigate the charges."

The "smear" accusation was made earlier in the week by Bricker, a Republican, when he refused to permit federal investigators to set up an office in the BUC for questioning the 1,800 employes on possible violations of the Hatch act, barring civil service workers from political activity.

"The investigation," Bricker said at the time, "follows typical New Deal lines—first a smear in which the truth is of no special importance; then a legislative proposal to extend further the federal desire for power through political and economic strangulation of all possible opposition."

The governor called the projected investigation a move designed to set the stage for "a federal grab of state unemployment compensation systems, confiscation of two billion in state funds, including Ohio's $206,000,000, and control of thousands of jobs."

LOSS $200,000

Miners Escape As Flames Sweep Tipple of Ohio Shaft.

CHAUNCEY —(U.P.)— The tipple of the No. 25 mine of the New York Coal company was in smouldering ruins today and company officials estimated the loss from a fire that put 360 miners out of work at $200,000.

The 85-foot tipple caught fire late yesterday when oil was sprayed on coal being prepared for stoker use. The 150 miners in the workings were notified of the fire by telephone and escaped through air shafts without injury.

ALL CLASSES OF LIVESTOCK NOW SELLING ABOVE PARITY PRICES

(By Special News Service)

CHICAGO — All major classes of livestock are now selling above parity prices, department of agriculture statistics disclosed today.

Parity is the price at which government economists estimate farm products should sell in order to provide farmers with purchasing power equivalent to that which they had in the years 1909 to 1914.

Lambs, wool and beef cattle have been quoted above parity all this year, but hogs did not go over the mark until mid-July. The price of livestock contrasts sharply with major grains, which are all selling below parity.

With the exceptions of cottonseed and Maryland tobacco, neither of which is important, from the standpoint of total farm income, wool showed the largest percentage price above the parity level of all commodities. Beef cattle ranked second, lambs and veal calves third and hogs fourth. Only six other farm products were above parity.

The figures of September 15, last compiled by the department, disclosed wool selling at 145 per cent of parity, beef cattle 131 per cent. Veal calves 122 per cent, lambs 122 per cent and hogs 112 per cent. Of the major grains, corn rated highest with only 80 per cent.

Some discussion of a possible change in the base period for determining parity developed in Washington this week. Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) introduced a bill providing that the years 1919 to 1929 serve as the base.

Such a change would considerably alter parity price levels, department of agriculture officials said.

The present parity price on wool is 24.3 cents a pound. If Senator Thomas's bill became law, the price would be raised to 30.2 cents a pound.

DRIVE MAPPED

Y. W. Membership Campaign Workers Attend Tea.

Meeting for the final instruction period prior to setting out Monday morning on the 12-day Y. W. C. A. membership campaign, women campaign workers heard the aims and purposes of the association explained at the initial campaign workers' tea Friday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Bertha A. Gregory, executive secretary of the association, defined the Y. W. C. A. as a "movement," and called attention to the constantly changing program that the association must provide to meet the needs of the girls and women of today.

Mrs. W. E. Wygant, co-chairman of the membership campaign, reviewed the questions that campaign workers will likely be called upon to answer by prospective members.

Approximately 40 women will conduct the membership drive.

This Sherman Won't March In Georgia, If He Can Help It

CAMP LEE, Va. — (AP) — He served with Pershing on the Mexican border, he was a top sergeant in the World war, and he comes from the aggressive locality of Red Hook, Brooklyn — but the newest recruit at Camp Lee's quartermaster replacement center is afraid of Georgia.

"You would be, too," he explained, "if your name happened to be William T. Sherman."

Sherman was a member of a post of veterans whose members, though middle-aged, volunteered and entered the army through a special ruling of the adjutant general's office.

Called "Pop" by his fellow soldiers, Sherman was detailed to drill some of the awkward squads of the sixth regiment.

"I'm glad to be back in the service," he said. "Now that I'm in, the army can do whatever it wants with me.

"As long as they don't send me to Georgia. With a name like mine, I'd be licked."

POSITION GRAVE AROUND VYAZMA SOVIETS ADMIT

Pravda said fighting north of Nazi-occupied Orel — south of Moscow — had "assumed fresh violence" and had developed into a series of fierce battles. The paper said the Germans were continually hurling fresh forces into action but that their fighting capacity had been diminished by blows from the Red air force.

Nevertheless, said Pravda, the German thrust against the capital has not yet been checked despite tremendous Nazi losses in manpower and equipment.

The regular noon war bulletin stated fighting had raged along the entire front from Leningrad to the Crimea during the night, with particularly fierce struggles raging at Vyazma and Bryansk.

Soviet military advices added that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's armies were hurling themselves at Nazi panzer spearheads near Bryansk in a series of ferocious sorties designed to cover a general withdrawal from this imperiled position to a new defense line about 100 miles south of Moscow.

(Editor's note: Latest reports from Berlin claimed destruction of the Red armies under Timoshenko was nearing its final stages in what German authorities described as the coup de grace for the "dying Red empire."

(German military officials said that every hour brings thousands more Soviet casualties. But they admitted the trapped Russian legions are attempting to break out of the iron rings which surround them—although each attempt only brings them face to face with torrents of artillery and machine gun fire.

(In Berlin this morning there were rumors that the Nazi panzer units had captured the city of Tula, little more than 100 miles south of the menaced Russian capital. There was no official confirmation of this, however, and heavy fighting was believed to be raging in that district.)

A supplementary war bulletin issued by the Russian high command said that in the direction of Bryansk, south of Vyazma, 43 German tanks were destroyed and one entire battalion of German troops annihilated.

Fierce fighting was reported continuing at another point on the Bryansk sector, where 23 German tanks and 80 trucks filled with Nazi infantrymen and ammunition, 13 anti-tank guns and a large number of machine guns were stated to have been destroyed or captured.

Previously the Moscow radio announced 12,000 Germans had been killed in wild fighting near Vyazma in which Russian units, scorning surrender, fought their way out of German encirclement rings to rejoin the mass of the Soviet central army.

In addition, a Soviet spokesman revealed, powerful new reinforcements had been rushed to the threatened Moscow front to make a fresh stand against the 3,000,000 German troops and thousands of tanks hurled into the desperate Nazi onslaught.

Report 8,800 Are Seized in Paris

VICHY—(U.P.)—Paris police said today that as result of a "vast purge" in which 76,500 persons were questioned in their homes and on the streets, 8,849 persons had been arrested during the past few days—7,749 for possessing arms and on other charges, and 1,100 others for Communist and De Gaullist activities.

Coincident with the Paris police disclosure, it was announced that the police in occupied France outside Paris, were continuing energetic repression of Communism and terrorism.

Reports here said that 15 persons described as "militant, dangerous Communists," had been interned in Doullens fortress in the Somme department, where they were joined by 30 other alleged Communists arrested a few days ago.

NAZIS SAY— ... ...

Nazis Say Prisoners And Booty Mount

BERLIN—(AP)—German forces are rapidly annihilating Russian soldiers trapped in the great encirclement battle of the central front and on a narrow strip of land north of the Sea of Azov, the Germans officially announced today.

While Nazi columns were reported striking at both the northern and southern flanks of Moscow's far-flung defenses in apparent attempts to encircle the capital, the high command said the number of prisoners and booty taken on the center "is steadily increasing."

The high command also said eleven Russian attempts to break out on the Leningrad front yesterday failed.

COLUMBUS—(INS)—A priceless relic—a 2,400-pound naval gun from the glorious frigate Old Ironsides—was back in the possession of the state today, and two men accused of stealing it and selling it as junk for $29 were sitting in the city bastille.

Because a passersby noted the license number, police located the truck in which the gun was hauled away.

'SMALLPOX' IN HITLER'S PATH?

In his old age, Charles V stayed in the saddle for months on end, in a desperate attempt to hold together the nations he had conquered. At last he gave up, and retired to a monastery.

Most historians suspect the chief symptom of conqueror's smallpox is an unfilterable virus known as "the spirit of nationalism." Nothing seems able to kill this spirit if it has the will to live. Genghis Khan, Alexander, Napoleon could not muster enough terror, enough force of arms to kill that spirit.

Draw a ring around the places where major incidents of anti-Nazi rebellion have flared. Despite censorship, the showing is impressive. How many hundreds of unmentioned, minor—but ultimately exhausting—incidents have occurred nobody knows.

Every "incident" is doubly debilitating to Germany. First, it detracts from the war effort against Russia and Britain. Second, it takes the effort of German occupying forces to hunt down the saboteurs.

Every German soldier required to keep the peace in a conquered country is a man lost from the fighting front. Furthermore, he sometimes is a man lost from productive enterprise in Germany proper, because it has been necessary to call up older reservants to replace young fighting men needed at the Russian front.

Germany has shown no slackening of her policy of militant reprisal for sabotage and subversion. Hundreds have been shot by firing squads in pursuit of that policy, hostages admittedly innocent of the crimes for which they died.

It's possible that sheer terror may deter conquered populations from further depredations. It's also possible that it won't. It hasn't to date.

It it doesn't, the third front may turn out to be the extremely important.

were made on docks at Rotterdam, Ostend, Dunkirk and Bordeaux. Ten British planes were lost in the raids.

As the British planes raided, and the war ministry disclosed the existence of a special "Commando" force of picked men trained in landing operations on an enemy coast, there was a sudden change of tone in newspapers which had been steadily intensifying their insistence on a British invasion of the continent, or an attack somewhere else which would aid Russia by diverting German forces.

There had been strange stories, which could not be published at the time, of the secret maneuvers of the "Commando" force. Ordinary British and other allied soldiers in training in various areas would pass a tree which would burst into life. The soldier who passed the "tree" would wake up after a while with a swollen chin. Boats had been overturned along the seacoast; sentries had been overpowered at their posts; army motor cars had disappeared.

The war office cleared up the mystery. All such incidents were due to the "commando" force. Men in it, picked carefully from every branch of the fighting service, have been trained for months to act independently, in small units or alone, in enemy country.

The newspaper clamor for direct military operations by Britain in aid of Russia reached its peak yesterday, when British and American aid missions arrived from Moscow.

The tone this morning was completely changed. Confident statements by members of the aid missions that Russia would fight on but that Britain and America must strain their hardest to get supplies to her presumably had something to do with it.

Demand British Open Western Front

LONDON—(INS)—Two large engineering factories in the English midlands sent telegrams to Prime Minister Winston Churchill today, demanding the "immediate opening of a western front."

Students of a university college hospital also adopted a resolution which was sent to Churchill urging immediate armed action.

At the same time British newspapers continued their campaign for concrete aid to Russia.

"Russia is not beaten but is staggering and her recovery depends upon the extent and speed of United States and British support," said the London Daily Herald.

formation, cannot be questioned publicly."

Republican members of the foreign affairs committee demanded a least five days hearings, all open to the public. Bloom said government witnesses probably would make public their formal statements, but cross-examination would be behind closed doors.

In a move to quell opposition, Bloom predicted that the ship arms bill will not be expanded, either in house or senate, to include repeal of the neutrality act combat zone provision.

The statement apparently was intended to end reports that administration forces, after getting a simple resolution arming ships passed in the house, would broaden it in the senate to permit American cargo ships to go straight to docks in Liverpool.

Guns on American merchant ships will be manned by navy crews if the bill is passed, it was reported. Chairman Vinson (D.), Ga., of the naval affairs committee, said he "assumed that navy crews will be put on the ship, because the navy would have the only trained men available."

New Panama Regime Charting Policy

BULLETIN

HAVANA—(AP)— Dr. Arnulfo Arias, the ousted president of Panama, sailed from Cuba today for Panama aboard the steamship Cefalu, due to arrive there Tuesday morning.

PANAMA, Panama—(AP)—Panama's two-day-old government studied its future course today with the apparent feeling that its position was legally secure and with the avowed support of a ranking follower of Exiled President Arnulfo Arias.

Political experts said there was a possibility the new president, Richardo de la Guardia, might summon the national assembly to approve his administration or might dissolve the assembly and call a general election to name a successor to Arias.

A call on all Arias partisans to support de la Guardia was sounded by Dr. Jose Encarnacion Arjona, members of the "council of thirty" and former president of the national revolutionary party which Arias built up as his own political machine.

At a mass meeting in Colon park last night, speakers of nearly all political parties urged support of the new administration and union of all American nations against totalitarianism.

Meanwhile, there was a stir in Havana over the presence there of Arias, who flew to Havana secretly last Tuesday.

A Cuban organization "friends of the Americans" demanded the expulsion of Arias.

Frequently accused by opponents of having Nazi sympathies, Arias said in Havana that "certain differences" had arisen between his administration and United States officials and declared his government's ruling against arming U. S. merchantmen of Panama registry had been "badly received" in the United States.

GEN. JOHNSON: AFL Votes to Put Skids Under Browne

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

WASHINGTON — There is a deal of cock-eyed stuff still floating over the price-control declarations. Representative Vinson wants to limit profits to 7 per cent of manufacturing cost on defense contracts whether or not with the United States. Vinson has conducted and will continue to conduct an investigation into all defense costs and profits. Thus far he has found some perfectly outrageous percentages of profit — 274 in one case.

Johnson

What he is doing in the way of investigation is one of the healthiest and most necessary moves we could make. Reports of our defense efforts have been made mostly in dollars, and while it can't be said that they don't mean a thing, it can be said that they are very deceptive.

We already know that in the case of building cantonments, costs mounted far out of line with any precedent or reason. There is a good reason to believe that we are getting pitifully little per ton of munitions for the dollars that we spend, and that Hitler probably gets three or four times as much for his armament money as we get for ours.

This of itself is one of our greatest inflationary threats—not to mention the fact that there must be some bottom to Uncle Sam's sock and that we could defeat ourselves on this front alone if somebody doesn't pay some attention to what we are getting for our money.

Vinson apparently proposes to pay a great deal of attention. Let us thank heaven for that.

But this business of "cost plus a percentage of profit" is old and deadly stuff. It was our curse in World War One. As a result we adopted a little less vicious formula—"cost plus a fixed fee."

Here is the difference. If your profit depends, as it does in ordinary competitive commercial life, on costs as low as you get them, you are not apt to go out like a drunken sailor and squander as much as you can to produce an article. You will try to produce it as cheaply as competitive conditions will permit.

But, if you are relieved from all care and responsibility about that and because of a fixed percentage based on costs as the measure of your profits, you not only have no incentive to reduce costs. You have a powerful incentive to push them up because the higher they go, the greater is your profit.

This is not merely theoretical. It stands to reason in human nature and it was amptly demonstrated by experience in 1917 and 1918.

The "cost plus a fixed fee" alternative, now more generally used, didn't altogether remove these evils because it still left the contractor with small responsibility for rising costs but, at least, it did not encourage him to boost costs as does the "cost plus a percentage of cost" rule.

It is a difficult and complex problem. But as types and manufacturing costs become more standardized and especially if we can get price and wage control legislation, so that a manufacturer can plan his costs with intelligence and the government can pass on them with equal intelligence, perhaps we can go back to the old competitive system in awarding contracts and then go in with some kind of intelligent corporation tax bill and eliminate all exhorbitant profits due to war.

PRESS FREEDOM IMPERILED, SAYS G. O. P. LEADER

Declares Real Menace Lies In 'Slow Suppression' Within Nation.

(By Associated Press)

LEBANON—Warnings that freedom of the press is imperiled and that the nation's constitutional government is in jeopardy were sounded today by Joseph W. Martin, jr., Republican congressional leader and chairman of the party's national committee.

"Whatever threats may face this nation from power-lustful aggressors abroad; whatever menace may lie in the actions of dictators in lands across the sea, one real danger to our nation here at home lies in the slow but undeniable suppression of freedom of the press," Martin declared.

Martin made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery at the dedication of a memorial plaque presented by the Daughters of the American Revolution to the Western Star, commemorating it as the oldest weekly newspaper west of the Applachian mountains. It was founded in 1806 and now is owned by Congressman Clarence J. Brown of the 7th district.

The occasion, Martin said, was of "special significance at this time when strange doctrines knock at the doors of our national thought for admittance; when foreign philosophers or alleged philosophies of governmental forms, alien to our own are urged upon us."

Those now crying the loudest that the press must be maintained free are those who "would help to impair its freedom in this country," he declared.

Asserting that the bill of rights is in peril, the Republican leader said constitutional government "is in jeopardy right here at home."

"There is not a single more important issue before the American people today than this question of the freedom of the press and the radio, and of free speech

"It is the very essence of Americanism—it is the very germ and lifespark of liberty, that men should be allowed to express their views and seek peaceably to persuade their fellow citizens to a course of action without being attacked or abused by those in high places in government or elsewhere.

"Where the press is free, and where the great majority of the people can read and write, free government and individual liberties are safe. If the press is kept uncontaminated, unintimidated, unsuppressed, the bill of rights will survive to bless posterity."

Lee Hundley, 391 Glessner avenue, can trap song birds in his backyard without any fear of the law. He has just received a permit from the federal government authorizing him to band migratory birds to help Uncle Sam study their habits. Hundley is one of 60 persons in Ohio who is banding birds. He plans to establish a station soon where he can catch different species and study their habits. Hundley is a salesman for the Ohio Public Service company, but he likes birds and works with them in his spare time.

A Mansfield housewife didn't say "gesundheit" quick enough Thursday, according to police, and found herself in the middle of an auto accident. Questioned by police, the woman motorist said the collision was all her own fault and that she had turned her attention from the road a minute to help her baby son stiffle a sneeze.

CUTS NUMBER OF OFFICIALS FROM 15 TO 13

Reductions In Vice-Presidents Seen as Move to Oust Alleged Extortionist.

(By United Press)

SEATTLE, Wash—The American Federation of Labor apparently had paved the way today for removal from its leadership of George E. Browne, alleged extortionist, by elirminating his job.

Without a dissenting vote, the AFL's 61st annual convention approved an executive council report recommending reduction of the number of vice presidents from 15 to 13.

Browne, who is being tried in New York with William Bioff for allegedly extorting $550,000 from motion picture producers, is president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes and is the AFL's 12th vice president. Bioff is the IATSE's west coast representative.

Although the council report said that reduction was suggested because 15 vice presidents made the leadership too unwieldy, it was pointed out unofficially that the move would permit removal of Browne by the simple expedient of not renominating him.

All other vice-presidents would be permitted to retain their jobs. The name of no others had been mentioned for elimination from the renominating list. The 15th officer, Thomas A. Rickert, died three months ago.

The 600 delegates adjourned for the week-end after approving the vice-presidential reduction and a constitutional amendment cutting the per capita tax from two to one and one-half cents per month with the further provision that unions with more than 300,000 members will have to pay into the central organization only one cent for each member over that number.

James M. Duffy of East Liverpool, O., president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, protested the tax cut because it continued a trend of reducing the financial burdens on large unions although it was they, he said, who controlled the federation.

"Within five or six years we will have a worse situation than in the 1934 convention in San Francisco," he said. "Unless we defeat this measure, we will be confronted with a third union organization."

The 1934 convention was the last before formation of the rival Congress of Industrial Organizations.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

Talk of the Town.

IN the new hit musical, "Best Foot Forward," Rosemary Lane plays a movie actress who is invited to a prep school prom—and accepts. The show has only been open a week, but already Rosemary has been deluged with invitations to prep school proms—and her press agent is going to make her accept one of them. . .

Brooks Atkinson, reviewing "Ah, Wilderness!" says of Harry Carey, "If Mr. Carey is plainly more Montana than New York . . ." If, indeed! Harry Carey was born in The Bronx, and is as much a New Yorker as his classmate, Jimmy Walker. Don't let those hosses fool you, Mr. Atkinson.

One of Broadway's fascinating, typical places—Roseland Ballroom—is 22 years old this week. About the age of its average hostess, once called a "dime-a-dance" girl, but reluctant to answer to that name now. A lot of lights have burned and gone out and been replaced in the twinkling signs over Broadway since the dance hall first opened in 1919. A lot of things have changed. The lights spell new names, and girls wear their hair differently, and a dime is worth less now. Nobody even guessed at boogie woogie in that era.

Roseland got its first big splash of publicity when it hired nobility as a drawing card. It advertised for "gentlemen possessing bona fide European titles"—the word "gigolo" was not mentioned—and within the week Broadway flappers were able to skim over the polished parquet with a baron, or a duke.

Two years later, the ballroom staged a "Jazz Wedding" in which even the clergyman did a sprightly two-step while reading the service. . . . When dance marathons were popular, Roseland held an elaborate dance marathon—half on land, half on sea beyond the three-mile limit. . . .

Ruby Keeler was a hostess there, and used to tap dance on Thursday nights.

But above everything, Roseland came to be known as the locale of the Broadway Cinderella story. A lad named Archibald Roberson Graustein, head of the International Paper company, paid a few visits to the place, danced with Claire Patton, and fell in love. They were married, just the way Cinderella and the Prince were married. And that launched an epidemic. Hostesses married department store executives, motor car company vice-presidents, bankers and Yale men.

Literary fellows and college boys are attracted to Roseland. F. Scott Fitzgerald used to hang around so much the doorman let him in for nothing

Achmed Abdullah, Lucius Beebe, the late Frank Ward O'Malley and Nunnally Johnson have been familiar faces around the dance floor.

Twenty million other paying customers have dented the parquet in the years since 1919, eight billion dance steps have been taken by the patrons. Saturday night is the best night of the week for the dime-a-dance palace. Easter week the best week of the year.

WANTS TALK ON SMEAR CHARGES

Bricker Says He'd Welcome Discussion on Probe Of Ohio's BUC.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Gov. John W. Bricker asserted today that he would welcome a conference with federal civil service representatives regarding his recent charges that the New Deal was attempting "to smear" the Ohio Bureau of Unemployment Compensation administration.

The governor's statement followed an announcement in Washington that a Republican representative of the civil service commission, Arthur S. Flemming, would confer with Bricker and "personally investigate the charges."

The "smear" accusation was made earlier in the week by Bricker, a Republican, when he refused to permit federal investigators to set up an office in the BUC for questioning the 1,800 employes on possible violations of the Hatch act, barring civil service workers from political activity.

"The investigation," Bricker said at the time, "follows typical New Deal lines—first a smear in which the truth is of no special importance; then a legislative proposal to extend further the federal desire for power through political and economic strangulation of all possible opposition."

The governor called the projected investigation a move designed to set the stage for "a federal grab of state unemployment compensation systems, confiscation of two billion in state funds, including Ohio's $206,000,000, and control of thousands of jobs."

ALL CLASSES OF LIVESTOCK NOW SELLING ABOVE PARITY PRICES

(By Special News Service)

CHICAGO — All major classes of livestock are now selling above parity prices, department of agriculture statistics disclosed today.

Parity is the price at which government economists estimate farm products should sell in order to provide farmers with purchasing power equivalent to that which they had in the years 1909 to 1914.

Lambs, wool and beef cattle have been quoted above parity all this year, but hogs did not go over the mark until mid-July. The price of livestock contrasts sharply with major grains, which are all selling below parity.

With the exceptions of cottonseed and Maryland tobacco, neither of which is important, from the standpoint of total farm income, wool showed the largest percentage price above the parity level of all commodities. Beef cattle ranked second, lambs and veal calves third and hogs fourth. Only six other farm products were above parity.

The figures of September 15, last compiled by the department, disclosed wool selling at 145 per cent of parity, beef cattle 131 per cent. Veal calves 122 per cent, lambs 122 per cent and hogs 112 per cent. Of the major grains, corn rated highest with only 80 per cent.

Some discussion of a possible change in the base period for determining parity developed in Washington this week. Senator Elmer Thomas (D-Okla.) introduced a bill providing that the years 1919 to 1929 serve as the base.

Such a change would considerably alter parity price levels, department of agriculture officials said.

The present parity price on wool is 24.3 cents a pound. If Senator Thomas's bill became law, the price would be raised to 30.2 cents a pound.

DRIVE MAPPED

Y. W. Membership Campaign Workers Attend Tea.

Meeting for the final instruction period prior to setting out Monday morning on the 12-day Y. W. C. A. membership campaign, women campaign workers heard the aims and purposes of the association explained at the initial campaign workers' tea Friday afternoon at the Y. W. C. A.

Miss Bertha A. Gregory, executive secretary of the association, defined the Y. W. C. A. as a "movement," and called attention to the constantly changing program that the association must provide to meet the needs of the girls and women of today.

Mrs. W. E. Wygant, co-chairman of the membership campaign, reviewed the questions that campaign workers will likely be called upon to answer by prospective members.

Approximately 40 women will conduct the membership drive.

McGregor Votes For Lease-Lend Appropriation Measure.

J. Harry McGregor, 17th district congressman, was among the nine Ohio Republicans who voted for the $35,985,000,000 lease-lend appropriation bill as it passed the house of representatives yesterday.

Eleven Ohio Democratic congressmen voted for the bill, with only one opposing its passage. Three Republicans voted against it.

YOUTHS TO BE UNION GUESTS

'Boys State' Representatives To Be Feted By Carpenters.

Mansfield youths who took part in "Boys State" on the Ohio State fairgrounds last spring in Columbus will be honored at a dinner Oct. 17 by members of the Carpenters' Union (AFL) Local 735.

Jack Hager, youth sponsored by the union at the time of the American Legion exercise, and 15 other youths will be invited to the affair in the Trades Council hall, 27½ North Park street, Clyde Myers, union spokesman, said today.

Following a dinner and entertainment, the young men will tell their experience while at "Boys State," Myers continued.

250 EXPECTED

Columbus Day Observance to Be Topped by Initiation.

Highlighting the Mansfield celebration of Columbus Day tomorrow the Knights of Columbus and their sister organization, the Daughters of Isabella, will play host to 250 district members of the two organizations at an initiation and observance program.

With guests from Danville, Mt. Vernon and Wooster in attendance, more than 50 candidates are expected to be initiated into the orders at the district initiatory ceremonies, according to John C. O'Donnell of Mansfield, Columbus Day celebration chairman.

Following the initiation set for Purdy hall on South Main street, Rev. M. J. Doyle, director of Catholic charities in the Toledo diocese, will address a public banquet at 6:30 p. m. in the Mansfield-Leland hotel.

State officers of both the Knights of Columbus and the Daughters of Isabella will attend the banquet.

Joan of Arc circle, 380, will hold their initiation in the Eagles hall with Marie Kalbfleisch, Mansfield regent, conducting degree work.

DEMS WILL VOTE ON 'GOVERNOR'

Seek to Pick Candidates In Secret Election at Lima.

LIMA —(INS)— Approximately 1,000 northwestern Ohio Democratic leaders will ballot secretly on their choice of a candidate for the 1942 gubernatorial nomination at a rally in Lima next Wednesday, Francis W. Durbin, chairman of the Allen county Democratic executive committee and sponsor of the conclave, announced today.

Durbin said he had extended invitations to each of the several potential candidates for governor and had received acceptances from most of them. The ballot will be taken at the close of the meeting and the result announced later.

This Sherman Won't March In Georgia, If He Can Help It

CAMP LEE, Va. — (AP) — He served with Pershing on the Mexican border, he was a top sergeant in the World war, and he comes from the aggressive locality of Red Hook, Brooklyn — but the newest recruit at Camp Lee's quartermaster replacement center is afraid of Georgia.

"You would be, too," he explained, "if your name happened to be William T. Sherman."

Sherman was a member of a post of veterans whose members, though middle-aged, volunteered and entered the army through a special ruling of the adjutant general's office.

Called "Pop" by his fellow soldiers, Sherman was detailed to drill some of the awkward squads of the sixth regiment.

"I'm glad to be back in the service," he said. "Now that I'm in, the army can do whatever it wants with me.

"As long as they don't send me to Georgia. With a name like mine, I'd be licked."

DIES AT AGE 88

Mrs. Martha A. Johns Succumbs at Grandson's Home.

Mrs. Martha A. Johns, 88, died yesterday at the home of her grandson, Lester Johns in East Mansfield, after a long illness.

Born in Fulton county, Pa., the daughter of pioneer residents of Richland county, she spent most of her life in this vicinity. She was a member of the First Christian church.

She is survived by one son; Viron Johns, of Troy township two daughters: Dora Johns, and Mrs. E. A. Reed, both of East Mansfield; one brother, Alfred Hammett of Cheyenne, Wyo.; two sisters, Mrs. O. K. Fisher of Loudonville, and Mrs. Henrietta Sherer of Ashland; and eight grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 1 p. m. in the Wappner funeral home, with Rev. B. F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church, officiating. Burial will be in the Ceserea cemetery.

LOSS $200,000

Miners Escape As Flames Sweep Tipple of Ohio Shaft.

CHAUNCEY —(U.P.)— The tipple of the No. 25 mine of the New York Coal company was in smouldering ruins today and company officials estimated the loss from a fire that put 360 miners out of work at $200,000.

The 85-foot tipple caught fire late yesterday when oil was sprayed on coal being prepared for stoker use. The 150 miners in the workings were notified of the fire by telephone and escaped through air shafts without injury.

POSITION GRAVE AROUND VYAZMA SOVIETS ADMIT

Report Fresh German Troops Hurled Into Struggle In Central Sector.

Pravda said fighting north of Nazi-occupied Orel — south of Moscow — had "assumed fresh violence" and had developed into a series of fierce battles. The paper said the Germans were continually hurling fresh forces into action but that their fighting capacity had been diminished by blows from the Red air force.

Nevertheless, said Pravda, the German thrust against the capital has not yet been checked despite tremendous Nazi losses in manpower and equipment.

The regular noon war bulletin stated fighting had raged along the entire front from Leningrad to the Crimea during the night, with particularly fierce struggles raging at Vyazma and Bryansk.

Soviet military advices added that Marshal Semyon Timoshenko's armies were hurling themselves at Nazi panzer spearheads near Bryansk in a series of ferocious sorties designed to cover a general withdrawal from this imperiled position to a new defense line about 100 miles south of Moscow.

(Editor's note: Latest reports from Berlin claimed destruction of the Red armies under Timoshenko was nearing its final stages in what German authorities described as the coup de grace for the "dying Red empire."

(German military officials said that every hour brings thousands more Soviet casualties. But they admitted the trapped Russian legions are attempting to break out of the iron rings which surround them—although each attempt only brings them face to face with torrents of artillery and machine gun fire.

(In Berlin this morning there were rumors that the Nazi panzer units had captured the city of Tula, little more than 100 miles south of the menaced Russian capital. There was no official confirmation of this, however, and heavy fighting was believed to be raging in that district.)

A supplementary war bulletin issued by the Russian high command said that in the direction of Bryansk, south of Vyazma, 43 German tanks were destroyed and one entire battalion of German troops annihilated.

Fierce fighting was reported continuing at another point on the Bryansk sector, where 23 German tanks and 80 trucks filled with Nazi infantrymen and ammunition, 13 anti-tank guns and a large number of machine guns were stated to have been destroyed or captured.

Previously the Moscow radio announced 12,000 Germans had been killed in wild fighting near Vyazma in which Russian units, scorning surrender, fought their way out of German encirclement rings to rejoin the mass of the Soviet central army.

In addition, a Soviet spokesman revealed, powerful new reinforcements had been rushed to the threatened Moscow front to make a fresh stand against the 3,000,000 German troops and thousands of tanks hurled into the desperate Nazi onslaught.

Report 8,800 Are Seized in Paris

VICHY—(U.P.)—Paris police said today that as result of a "vast purge" in which 76,500 persons were questioned in their homes and on the streets, 8,849 persons had been arrested during the past few days—7,749 for possessing arms and on other charges, and 1,100 others for Communist and De Gaullist activities.

Coincident with the Paris police disclosure, it was announced that the police in occupied France outside Paris, were continuing energetic repression of Communism and terrorism.

Reports here said that 15 persons described as "militant, dangerous Communists," had been interned in Doullens fortress in the Somme department, where they were joined by 30 other alleged Communists arrested a few days ago.

NAZIS SAY— ... ...

Nazis Say Prisoners And Booty Mount

BERLIN —(AP)— German forces are rapidly annihilating Russian soldiers trapped in the great encirclement battle of the central front and on a narrow strip of land north of the Sea of Azov, the Germans officially announced today.

While Nazi columns were reported striking at both the northern and southern flanks of Moscow's far-flung defenses in apparent attempts to encircle the capital, the high command said the number of prisoners and booty taken on the center "is steadily increasing."

The high command also said eleven Russian attempts to break out on the Leningrad front yesterday failed.

Because a passersby noted the license number, police located the truck in which the gun was hauled away.

'SMALLPOX' IN HITLER'S PATH?

In his old age, Charles V stayed in the saddle for months on end, in a desperate attempt to hold together the nations he had conquered. At last he gave up, and retired to a monastery.

Most historians suspect the chief symptom of conqueror's smallpox is an unfilterable virus known as "the spirit of nationalism." Nothing seems able to kill this spirit if it has the will to live. Genghis Khan, Alexander, Napoleon could not muster enough terror, enough force of arms to kill that spirit.

Draw a ring around the places where major incidents of anti-Nazi rebellion have flared. Despite censorship, the showing is impressive. How many hundreds of unmentioned, minor—but ultimately exhausting—incidents have occurred nobody knows.

Every "incident" is doubly debilitating to Germany. First, it detracts from the war effort against Russia and Britain. Second, it takes the effort of German occupying forces to hunt down the saboteurs.

Every German soldier required to keep the peace in a conquered country is a man lost from the fighting front. Furthermore, he sometimes is a man lost from productive enterprise in Germany proper, because it has been necessary to call up older reservants to replace young fighting men needed at the Russian front.

Germany has shown no slackening of her policy of militant reprisal for sabotage and subversion. Hundreds have been shot by firing squads in pursuit of that policy, hostages admittedly innocent of the crimes for which they died.

It's possible that sheer terror may deter conquered populations from further depredations. It's also possible that it won't. It hasn't to date.

It it doesn't, the third front may turn out to be the extremely important.

were made on docks at Rotterdam, Ostend, Dunkirk and Bordeaux. Ten British planes were lost in the raids.

As the British planes raided, and the war ministry disclosed the existence of a special "Commando" force of picked men trained in landing operations on an enemy coast, there was a sudden change of tone in newspapers which had been steadily intensifying their insistence on a British invasion of the continent, or an attack somewhere else which would aid Russia by diverting German forces.

There had been strange stories, which could not be published at the time, of the secret manouvers of the "Commando" force. Ordinary British and other allied soldiers in training in various areas would pass a tree which would burst into life. The soldier who passed the "free" would wake up after a while with a swollen chin. Boats had been overturned along the seacoast; sentries had been overpowered at their posts; army motor cars had disappeared.

The war office cleared up the mystery. All such incidents were due to the "commando" force. Men in it, picked carefully from every branch of the fighting service, have been trained for months to act independently, in small units or alone, in enemy country.

The newspaper clamor for direct military operations by Britain in aid of Russia reached its peak yesterday, when British and American aid missions arrived from Moscow.

The tone this morning was completely changed. Confident statements by members of the aid missions that Russia would fight on but that Britain and America must strain their hardest to get supplies to her presumably had something to do with it.

Demand British Open Western Front

LONDON —(INS)— Two large engineering factories in the English midlands sent telegrams to Prime Minister Winston Churchill today, demanding the "immediate opening of a western front."

Students of a university college hospital also adopted a resolution which was sent to Churchill urging immediate armed action.

At the same time British newspapers continued their campaign for concrete aid to Russia.

"Russia is not beaten but is staggering and her recovery depends upon the extent and speed of United States and British support," said the London Daily Herald.

formation, cannot be questioned publicly."

Republican members of the foreign affairs committee demanded a least five days hearings, all open to the public. Bloom said government witnesses probably would make public their formal statements, but cross-examination would be behind closed doors.

In a move to quell opposition, Bloom predicted that the ship arms bill will not be expanded, either in house or senate, to include repeal of the neutrality act combat zone provision.

The statement apparently was intended to end reports that administration forces, after getting a simple resolution arming ships passed in the house, would broaden it in the senate to permit American cargo ships to go straight to docks in Liverpool.

Guns on American merchant ships will be manned by navy crews if the bill is passed, it was reported. Chairman Vinson (D.), Ga., of the naval affairs committee, said he "assumed that navy crews will be put on the ship, because the navy would have the only trained men available."

New Panama Regime Charting Policy

BULLETIN

HAVANA —(AP)— Dr. Arnulfo Arias, the ousted president of Panama, sailed from Cuba today for Panama aboard the steamship Cefalu, due to arrive there Tuesday morning.

PANAMA, Panama—(AP)—Panama's two-day-old government studied its future course today with the apparent feeling that its position was legally secure and with the avowed support of a ranking follower of Exiled President Arnulfo Arias.

Political experts said there was a possibility the new president, Richardo de la Guardia, might summon the national assembly to approve his administration or might dissolve the assembly and call a general election to name a successor to Arias.

A call on all Arias partisans to support de la Guardia was sounded by Dr. Jose Encarnacion Arjona, members of the "council of thirty" and former president of the national revolutionary party which Arias built up as his own political machine.

At a mass meeting in Colon park last night, speakers of nearly all political partics urged support of the new administration and union of all American nations against totalitarianism.

Meanwhile, there was a stir in Havana over the presence there of Arias, who flew to Havana secretly last Tuesday.

A Cuban organization "friends of the Americans" demanded the expulsion of Arias.

Frequently accused by opponents of having Nazi sympathies, Arias said in Havana that "certain differences" had arisen between his administration and United States officials and declared his government's ruling against arming U. S. merchantmen of Panama registry had been "badly received" in the United States.

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and please relay the same message to other members of the family.

The man who makes a better mousetrap will probably have to cut down production because he can't get materials.

Fate at last seems to be catching up with George Sylvester Viereck, along with less brilliant immigrants accused of misusing their citizenship.

Defense Contracts for Mansfield

SPREAD of the news that Mansfield industries were in need of defense orders, to offset restricted production of consumer goods, was so quickly followed by action along this line that there is merit in the view of a Westinghouse spokesman that this came about "because of the effort made to focus attention on Mansfield as a town which would be seriously affected by curtailment of consumer durable goods production."

Whatever causes may have entered into the award of additional defense contracts to Mansfield industries, it has become apparent that the Chamber of Commerce and management of local industries have entered whole-heartedly into the task of presenting Mansfield's claims to recognition in the distribution of defense work and there is every reason for confidence that further allocations are in process.

In some instances, of course, adjustment to production changes will take a little time, but with the present high total of industrial employment, plus opportunities for mercantile employment and shortage of skilled craftsmen in various trades, outlook for the winter in Mansfield may be regarded as brighter than it has been for several years.

If buying, in relation to earnings, can be kept to a normal pace there is no apparent justification for pessimism—in fact an attitude of pessimism is about the worst thing that could happen just now to individuals, cities, or the country as a whole.

There's a big job to be done by the United States of America and every Mansfielder is obligated to share in the task—a part of which is to cheerfully and energetically continue the American way of life—earn, spend, save. Buy what you can afford to have, but don't overbuy of articles on which production has been restricted.

Taking Exercise By Proxy

FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL, as philosophic observers know, are not merely sports. They are largely, and perhaps primarily, what psychologists call an "escape." People throng to games by tens of thousands to watch two small groups of men playing a game that they would like to play themselves, if they had the skill or energy or opportunity. For a little while they can put themselves in the players' places, imagine themselves performing brilliant athletic feats and go home satisfied or disgusted, as the case may be, with what "their team" has done.

There is drama, too. That is a large part of it, and one reason why women take more and more interest in the games. But probably the mental "escape" theory still holds good.

Back of all this mental and emotional stress is the sad fact of the athletic slump of civilized man. The more civilization progresses, as gauged by the usual standards, the more we take our play and exercise by proxy, the less vigorous our bodies become, the more we tend to lose our natural physical skills. Childhood and youth still retain a good deal of vigor and find outlets for it, but most grown-ups tend to grow physically soft and remain in that condition.

There seems to be more hope lately for women. They are taking to the athletic life as men recede from it.

Partial Taboo On Gambling

THE SUBJECT of commercialized gambling looms up again, to the annoyance and embarrassment of law enforcement officials, who never seem to know what to do about it.

Most recent administration move is against "money boards," which seem to be a miniature version of lottery, with money instead of merchandise given to the occasional winners.

Quite recently there was an order from the state liquor board that slot machines and all gambling devices must be removed from private clubs which sold liquor, and shortly before that Mayor Locke stated belief that gambling "should not be seen"—so a bingo game moved from a first floor to a second floor room and was thereafter undisturbed.

Location of bookie operations have also been quite consistently held to the second floor, although this may have been for the greater seclusion of patrons than because of police dictation—the police policy having been that not more than one illegal bookie place could operate in the city.

If, as Mayor Locke says, "it has been a standing order", since he came into office, that gambling devices must be removed, it may appear that the police department—usually efficient—lacks enthusiasm in this particular phase of law enforcement.

Children Rally To Defense

AN IDEA that children in the United States are taking a lively interest in national defense is gained from the outcome of a recent poll which disclosed willingness of many children to buy defense savings stamps and bonds.

The question was, what would the child do if given $100 "all his own," and the answer of one out of every three was that he would invest the entire amount in defense savings bonds.

Ten thousand children in all parts of the country were included in the poll, which was conducted with co-operation of the Y. M. C. A. and other groups sponsoring summer camps.

Thirty-five per cent of the boys and twenty-eight per cent of the girls, representing thirty-three per cent of all children in the poll said they would invest the $100 in defense bonds. Forty-seven per cent said they would put the money in the bank, one per cent would buy toys, seven per cent would purchase clothing, and two per cent would take "special lessons."

According to testimony at the New York trial of a couple of labor leaders on extortion charges, it took a lot of money to buy off Bioff.

Unless the government puts a ceiling over prices, consumers will soon start raising the roof.

The trouble with pro and con debates is that they are mostly con.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I listened to a discussion of famous promoters and sports characters at a restaurant off Broadway last night, and though everybody from Tex Rickard and his Klondike Shenanigans to Ruth Ederle, the channel swimmer, came in for discussion, nobody happened to hit on Douglas Hertz, who probably has led the most adventurous life of them all.

Hertz is owner of the New York Football Yankees and a promoter of wide talents and experiences. . . . For twelve years he was a captain in the British army. He was on the Lusitania when it was torpedoed during the World war. . . . Later he organized a series of widely-ballyhooed pig races in Florida, acquired a polo club in New Jersey, and became the owner of several nightclubs. Recently John Kimbrough, the All-American football star from Texas, came under the interested gaze of Hertz and he gave the star a $35,500 contract without even bothering to inquire what position Kimbrough played. . . . But in this Hertz was only being consistent. . . . Though he owns the Yankees, he has never seen a game of football.

IN ADDITION to being a widely known and highly-paid striptease dancer, it now appears that Gypsy Rose Lee is a voluminous letter writer. A batch of her epistles have just been made public by the publishers who are bringing out Gypsy's mystery-thriller, "The G-String Murders" this fall. . . . The reasons the letters werep ublished in an attractive little brochure is that nobody believed Gypsy really wrote the book herself. . . .

Skeptics are continually asking Lee Wright, "Who's the ghost?" . . . So Wright gathered up all Gypsy's correspondence, written on hotel stationery from San Francisco's Fairmont to Detroit's Book Cadillac and made them public. . . . Some of the lines make your eyes pop.

Will High Taxes Affect Voting?

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Joe Martin, chairman of the Republican national committee and G. O. P. leader in the house of representatives, believes taxes are working up the folks to an extent which may give the Republicans control of the house of representatives, as well as gains in the senate, next year.

Martin is not given much to wishful thinking. He is a shrewd politician and has proved a remarkably able leader in congress even though he won no particular glory as national chairman in last year's campaign. In fact if it were not for a wholesome respect for Martin's opinion, discussion of taxes as the issue would seem rather silly.

The point is that the war situation may be very grave in November, 1942, when the voters select the new house and, at least one-third of the senate. This country may be in the war by that time—probably will be. Even if it is not, there is small likelihood of our not being even more committed to the defeat of Adolf Hitler by that time than we are now. The Nazis are reported to hate us pretty strongly at present, but surely, assuming the war continues, they will have plenty of cause to hate us more by that time.

In fact, still assuming that the war is in progress at that time, Hitler's excuse to the German people for not having achieved victory long since probably will be laid on the American doorsteps. In his recent broadcast Hitler for the first time publicly admitted a mistake—that he had under-estimated the Russian armament. In the same speech he scoffed at American aid—by inference.

BY NOVEMBER, 1942, still assuming continuance of the war, he will be admitting another mistake, this time that he had under-estimated, in October, 1941, the aid his enemies could obtain overseas.

Now suppose we assume that the above is a fairly accurate forecast of the war situation precisely one year hence. And suppose further that Joe Martin and his fellow Republican speakers and leaders were attempting to capitalize the tax issue.

Isn't it obvious that FDR would appeal to the country, or have some of his lieutenants do it, on the notion that defeat of a Democratic majority in the house election would be construed all over the world as a repudiation of America's aid to Hitler's enemies—in short that a Republican victory would be a tremendous encouragement to Germany and a terrific discouragement to Britain, not to mention Russia, if that country is still holding out?

SOME may point out that Woodrow Wilson tried to do precisely this, in 1918, and the reaction of the country was so unfavorable that the Republicans captured the house, which they hoped to do, and also the senate, a victory for which they had entertained no hope whatever.

There are two answers to this: One is that Wilson in 1918, was suffering from bitter resentments of two kinds. The people who had voted for him two years before on the "kept us out of war" issue felt betrayed. Various national groups felt that he had trampled on the rights of their racial cousins in Europe.

The second answer is that the Wilson appeal in 1918 was colored unfortunately. It seemed to put the stamp of near treason on the Republicans, and at that time, there was no blinking the fact that normally the country was Republican.

If the administration should be worried about the election prospect in 1942 it would be possible to put the appeal much more tactfully, and so forcefully that it would be interesting to see whether many ardent Republican newspapers, for example, would be able to resist it!

Listen World!

Don't Sell Yourself

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FREE-SPEECH"—most of us still take it for granted. We've always had it . . . we've never had to suffer for it. We can pick up any newspaper page, or turn the dial in any radio, and be assured of honest, wide-open action. They don't shoot us here for listening to a British broadcast, as they are doing in Norway and Germany.

But don't comfort yourself too much with that thought. For, despite our rosy illusions, Free Speech is not an inalienable right. It can be taken from us, as it has been taken from other people.

You can be robbed of free speech by the most subtle devices and never know you've lost it until it is too late. . . . and, believe me, many a mister big is making passes in that direction!

Obviously, a certain amount of sane restraint is always essential. Sensible people do not run around telling all they know, regardless of risk. Decent people do not permit obscenity . . . nor indulge in malicious abuse. These restraints are regarded as natural and necessary checks on lip liberty, and are voluntarily respected.

But when perfectly normal utterances are twisted out of their original pattern and given new and sinister meanings, either to serve the ends of some group or to harass some individual, look out! That isn't just a front-page story. That's a situation which is bound to change the course of your personal life. And you'd better start looking into it.

The current agitation over War Propaganda in Hollywood is a case in print. It is claimed that the magnificent new picture, "Sergeant York," is a vicious example of war mongering. America, cry these claimants, is being pushed into war by the passion and pathos of its appeal. Maybe so! But I've seen "Sergeant York."

AND IF THAT'S PROPAGANDA, I'M A HUMMING BIRD!

"Sergeant York" is a straight story of a lusty American and his incredibly brave deed. You can read various shades of meaning into it, as you can into any act or speech. But it's not "pushing" America, save in the sense that we're all "pushed" into courage by the sight of a brave deed, or "pushed" into rage by the pity aroused by a dastardly one.

IF IT'S "WAR MONGERING" TO APPLAUD THE HERO AND HISS THE VILLAIN, THEN YOU CAN FIND PROPAGANDA IN THE SIMPLEST FILM, EVEN IN DONALD DUCK. PERSONALLY, I'VE LONG SUSPECTED SUBVERSIVE INFLUENCES IN HIS STRIDENT SQUAWK!

Grins aside, the real menace in this Hollywood shakedown isn't the question of Sergeant York's political status, but the fact that the picture record of a great life can be—and is being—used to spread doubt and dismay . . . and thereby limit our right to Free Expression.

If we permit any group of individual to censor this worthy appeal to patriotism, we are striking to the roots of all our democratic traditions . . . no injury which Hitler or Mussolini could possibly inflict upon us could equal the viciousness of such a blow.

But why should Americans wish to inflict a blow upon their brothers? For the simple reason which has inspired every rabble-rousing campaign—they're on axe to grind. And the quickest way to grind it is to put somebody, anybody, into the dog house.

Don't let them do it! As a nation we're emotionally unstable just now, beset and bewildered by changes and fears. It's easy to "put something over." We'll respond easily to any popular slogan. Don't let it happen!

If this sort of thing continues, Hitler will not need to invade these shores. Our "100 percent American" Peeping Toms will do his dirty work for him. And they won't need a Terrorist Trainer to tell them how. If they just stick around, they'll see all the moves.

The Night

—By HELEN LOOMIS LINHAM

Night brings such sure release
from woe and care,
And burdens magnified throughout the day;
The tranquility, God seems to share
Of heaven then, in such a vivid
way;
The dark is friendly to a heart
that grieves,
And many are the eyes that seek the stars
For peace, and solitude that somehow leaves
A purity erasing earthly scars.

Oh, you that walk in sorrow and
in woe,
Abide the shadows and the velvet space;
I think God surely planned the
darkness so,
Remembering, and with a knowing grace;
And as the heart is calmed, and
hours creep,
He gently whispers, "Sleep, oh
children, sleep!"

Summary of Week's Happenings

Neutrality Law Up for Revision, President Asks for Quick Action

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

ON SEPT. 23 the American-owned Pink Star, sailing under the flag of Panama, was torpedoed while en route to Iceland. The sinking gave occasion to President Roosevelt to mention that perhaps the neutrality law had better be modified.

Washington was abuzz early in the week over the sinking of another ship, also American-owned and under Panamanian colors. It was the tanker I. C. White, which Captain William Mello said was attacked without warning off the Brazilian coast even though spotlights were shining on her flag.

Administration circles seized on the White sinking as a peg onto which to hang their demands for modification of the neutrality act. Secretary Hull called it "another act of lawlessness, piracy and attempted frightfulness" and said the question had simmered down to this: "If somebody is moving in some peaceful person's direction with a gun in his hand, it is time for that other person to defend himself."

Nye Recalls 1917.

By the time the president and his advisers went into a huddle to decide on the modification message to be sent to congress, the lines of debate were pretty well drawn. A poll indicated that the senate would approve some change but only over substantial opposition. The house has been more hostile to FDR's foreign policy.

Senator Nye (R-N.D.), an opponent of the administration's foreign policy, remarked: "I don't know what is going to happen, but I do know what happened to Wilson's bill. History could repeat itself." (In March, 1917, twelve U. S. senators talked to death President Wilson's proposal to arm merchant ships.)

In a message to congress Thursday the president asked for quick action to permit arming U. S. merchant ships.

Right in the middle of all the talk, Panama pointed up the issue by forbidding the arming of merchantmen flying her flag. The president said this made neutrality revision all the more necessary, but some of his opponents asked why American-owned ships couldn't simply register with another Latin American country.

By a coup d'etat Panama's President Arnulfo Arias was succeeded by Ricardo Adolfo de La-Guardia, said to be more favorable to collaboration with the United States.

New Lend-Lease Bill.

The president's new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease bill was started through congress with its backers crying that "clouds of airplanes" and "acres of tanks" are needed to beat Hitler. Republicans grumbled that very little of the first lend-lease appropriation had been spent, but the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce pointed out that there "seems to be a misconception that the only equipment going abroad is that which is labelled lend-lease," whereas nearly $280,000,000 worth of aeronautical equipment had been sent to Britain this year under old orders.

The report of the house appropriations committee told of testimony by Admiral Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, that within a year the U. S. will be building so many ships that Germany will have to increase sinkings to a point "greater than they have ever been before" to keep up with production.

At Home

What to Do?

Washington is getting more and more worried about inflation. Several methods for preventing it, or at least controlling it, are being discused by congressmen. They range from price and wage control to President Roosevelt's suggestion of broadening the social security program.

Another anti-inflation idea is control of installment buying, already in effect. Security Director McNutt said during the week he didn't think this was "a democratic way" because rich people can pay cash for a new radio but the poor man can't make the first installment. He also was opposed to social security expansion.

As Budget Director Smith estimated that defense would cost $135 for every person in the country this fiscal year, Thurman Arnold, justice department anti-trust chief, said the biggest price increases were in food and clothing, "where shortages have not yet developed."

"This proves," he said, "that . . . it is the pyramiding of distribution costs by private groups in strategic positions that is creating most of the inflation."

America Arms.

September delivery of military planes hit a record of 1,914—with more of them actual fighting planes than trainers than ever before. An OPM official said "I see no reason why 2,500 military planes a month should not be produced by the end of the year."

The navy, too, announced "astounding" progress. It said keels for its two-ocean fleet are being laid at the rate of more than one a day.

Ford Feels Auto Curb.

In Detroit, Henry Ford's personnel chief, Harry Bennett, announced that because of curtailment of auto production forced by the national defense, 20,000 men would be laid off at the big Rouge plant.

But as OPM officials arrived in Detroit to offer auto makers additional work, a spokesman for CIO-UAW said only 5,400 workers would be laid off, and those either probationary or non-production men.

A Killer Curbed.

Syphilis used to be a nasty word that you didn't use in public. In the early '30s public health officials began to strip away the prudishness that surrounded this terrible disease and to educate people about how to control it. Now 26 states require that couples who are going to marry must first take a blood test.

The Council of State Governments has just finished a survey of 16 states (the ones that have had a blood test law long enough to show results) and reports only 1.28 percent of those taking the test had syphilis. The American Social Hygiene Association estimates that 3.24 percent of the adults in the country as a whole have it.

AFL to 'Give All'?

Boomed AFL President Green as his group's national convention got off to a boisterous start: "We are going to advise the president of the United States we will give all we have in the support of his program."

Next day FDR sent the convenestablishment of peace between labor organizations would be a patriotic step." Green said FDR had better talk to the CIO about that.

A striking example of AFL-CIO feuding was on hand. Federal Works Administrator John Carmody disclosed that he had held up the award of a contract to the low bidder on a big defense housing contract in Wayne county, Mich.

Carmody said he feared that granting the contract would bring howls from AFL.

Quotes

Gov. Harold E. Stassen, Republican of Minnesota: "I am more concerned with what happens to my country than what happens to my party."

Wendell L. Willkie: "The neutrality act is a piece of hypocrisy and deliberate self-deception by which we tried to lull ourselves into a sense of safety."

Abroad

Spoils Surprise.

Adolf Hitler doesn't usually tell what he's going to do until after he's done it, but in his winter relief rally speech he broke his custom. While admitting that the Russians still were far from licked, he proclaimed that "a gigantic new development" was under way.

The world had to wait three more days before it found out what the big news was. It turned out to be another wallop at Moscow. The drive along the road to Moscow from the Smolensk area was renewed, another drive pressed down from the Valdai hills, 175 miles north, and a third drive started from the area of Bryansk, 150 miles to the south.

Chromium In the Wind.

When Turkey was strongly pro-British she signed a contract to furnish Britain virtually all her war-vital chromium. The metal was to be forwarded to American arms factories.

Since last Spring Turkey has been under heavy pressure from Germany, and the Nazis want chromium. Wednesday Turkey agreed to give the Germans at least half her chromium exports after 1942. British and American diplomats in Turkey were annoyed, but noted philosophically that lois can happen before 1943.

Highwater Recedes.

The highwater mark of Japan's four-year effort to overrun China is Ichang on the Yangtze. It is 800 miles from the coast but still 300 miles from Chungking. Nippon's warriors reached Ichang two years ago but have gone no farther.

Japan acknowledged that a great Chinese offensive has swept past Ichang and on 60 miles to Shasi but she did not immediately admit that Ichang had fallen. Later Chungking reported that Ichang was encircled. Capture of the city probably would be regarded as China's greatest victory of the war.

Mars Draws Nearer.

Our neighbor, Mars, is the closest it will be for the next 15 years. In fact it is only 38 million miles distant. Its brilliance makes it seem like a most accessible jewel hung not far out of reach to ornament the evening sky. As the great red planet attracts especial attention, the old questions are asked over again. Is Mars inhabited? Were the canals seen on its surface built for irrigation or something? Are the green areas observed through the telescope actually vegetation?

To all these the astronomers have only jests. Let the cartoonists with their Skygacks from Mars, the inventors with their comic rockets, and Orson Welles with the creeps bother about the Martians. The astronomers do not take the sociological view.—Toledo Blade.

Miss Marth Weds James L. Davis At Russell, Ky.

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Myrtle Marth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Marth, 418 Cline avenue, and James L. Davis, son of Mrs. Jane Davis, 177 South Foster street. The ceremony was solemnized June 3 at 10 a. m. at Russell, Ky. The bride was attired in a powder blue taffeta formal gown with a corsage of red roses.

Mrs. Davis is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and has been employed at the Kroger Grocery and Baking company. Mr. Davis is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and is employed at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company. The couple will be at home at the Herring apartments on West Third street after Oct. 13.

Party Honors Bride-Elect Friday Night

Miss Ruby Myers of Galion, bride-elect of Richard Bowden of Mansfield was feted at a miscellaneous shower Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Charles Huck, Massa avenue. Mrs. Ben Seton of Shelby served as associate hostess. Sixteen guests were in attendance.

During the evening the guests made a bride's book and played games and contests. Prizes were won by Mrs. Alesta Christman, Mrs. Dorothy Shaw of Galion and the honoree. Luncheon was served at small tables decorated with pastel appointments. The hostesses presented the honoree with a gift of crystal.

PROSPECT MOTHERS.

Twenty-five attended the covered dish dinner meeting held at the Prospect school by the Mothers' club Thursday afternoon. Officers were hostesses for the day. Mrs. Harold Gorsuch was named the new secretary and Mrs. Hugh Scott, assistant secretary. It was decided to spend the year's session doing Red Cross work instead of giving programs. The next regular meeting will be held Nov. 13 at the building in charge of Mrs. H. H. Light.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 12.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds excellent testimonies for the conventional vocations and avocations of the Sabbath. There should be expansive and flourishing conditions in all ecclesiastical, intellectual and professional affairs, with social, convival and friendly pastimes promising much pleasure and gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very progressive and productive year, with all pertaining to writings, publicity, communications, travel, in fact all professional as well as commercial interests affording much success and satisfaction. The element of the social, cultural, companionship as well as sentimental may combine to promote a warm, happy and pleasant year.

For Monday, October 13.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather contradictory state of affairs, with most propitious promises negatived by oppositions and antagonisms both from major and minor sources. This may all be provoked by rash, impetuous, violent and belligerent tendencies run out of hand into danger, loss, perhaps bodily mishap or physical ills. Finances are promising, but those in high places may not be co-operative, being exasperated by turbulent and tempestuous conduct.

Those whose birthday it is may find their own ungoverned and wayward behavior as their "worst enemy" during the year. Such tempestuous, violent, intemperate conduct may incite opposition from those in high places as well as from a lesser status.

MRS. HAUTZENROEDER TO HEAD BUCKEYE CLUB

Election of Officers Held At Final Meeting of Garden Club Friday Afternoon At Home of Retiring President, Mrs. Howard Peck.

MRS. LEONARD HAUTZENROEDER was named president of the Buckeye Garden club at their regular meeting held Friday at The Woods, near Ashland. Mrs. Thornton Lake was chairman of arrangements for the luncheon meeting attended by 10 members. This was the last session until spring. Other officers who will assist with club duties for the coming year are Mrs. Lake, vice president; Mrs. Deming Lowrey, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Louis Wenger, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Francis O'Brien, horticultural chairman; Mrs. Thomas Siegenthaler, conservation chairman; Mrs. Robert Frey, garden center representative.

Following the luncheon the group motored to the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Howard Peck, Brae Burn. At the close of the business session a social time was enjoyed. On Oct. 18 the club members will entertain their husbands with a dinner party at the Hotel Talbott, Galion. Planning for the affair are Mrs. Peck, chairman, Mrs. Gene Zediker and Mrs. Jack Berno.

Class Meeting Held at Piper Home on Friday

Members of the Love and Friendship class of the Mayflower Congregational church held a meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. D. Piper, North Mulberry street. Three guests, Mrs. J. R. Heilman, Mrs. Dan Edwards and Mrs. Lewis C. Rein, were in attendance. Devotions were led by Miss Lucille Boyer and Mrs. Roscoe Harter.

Readings were given by Miss Imagene Bennett and Mrs. Edwards. A short business session was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Bloom, president. Mrs. Kenneth Ross was welcomed as a new member into the class. Plans were made to hold a Halloween party Oct. 29 at the church. All adult church members are welcome to attend. Contests were played during the evening and prizes won by Miss Bennett and Miss Grace Finical. Luncheon was served. The next session will be held Nov. 11 at the home of Mrs. Mary Ross, 323 Longview avenue.

ATLAS CLUB MEETS.

Mrs. Kenneth Donelson, Garfield place, was hostess to members of the Atlas club at her home last evening. Pictures of her western trip were shown and the evening spent socially. At a late hour a buffet luncheon was served. Announcement of the time and place of the next meeting will be made later.

Two Papers Given At Garden Study Club Meeting

Mrs. W. S. Valmore, Cook road, was hostess to members of the Mansfield Garden Study club Friday afternoon at her home. Luncheon was served at noon with autumn flowers decorating the serving table. Each one was presented with a V-insignia as a favor. During the afternoon a program was presented by Mrs. E. C. Jenkins on "Evergreens" and Mrs. A. J. Barker on "Fall Flowers."

Later flower arrangements were discussed by the group. Twelve members and one guest, Mrs. Laura McDaniel of Long Beach, Calif., a house guest of Mrs. O. H. McDaniel, were present. The next meeting will be held Oct. 24 at the home of Mrs. H. W. Peterson, 429 Park avenue west.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS.

Mrs. David Brangaccio, Park avenue west, entertained a group of friends from Mansfield and Galion Thursday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Shumaker, west of Galion. The morning was spent in horseback riding after which a buffet luncheon was served at the home. The afternoon was spent in cards. Later the group motored to the home of Mrs. Roy Beck, Park avenue west road, for an evening of bridge.

DINNER PARTY.

Mrs. Chester Secrist was in charge of the dinner meeting held Friday evening at the Staiger tea room by members of the Busy Bee club. Dinner was served at 6 p. m. at a long table decorated with crystal and garden flowers. Bunco was played and prizes won by Mrs. Lial Ish. Mrs. Mary Somers and Mrs. Secrist. Plans were made to hold a Halloween party Oct. 24 at the home of Mrs. Earl Black, Woodland road. Mrs. Somers will serve as associate hostess.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

MY KNEES were distinctly shaking as I went down the stairs of the Underwood house to the library, where my father and Harry Underwood awaited me. I had the consciousness of work well done to sustain me, but I was afraid that I had taken too long a time for it.

That the papers I bore held a tangible clue to the mystery surrounding Marion I was sure, even though I doubted that any indication of her present whereabouts was contained in it.

But I was on fire to get back to Lillian's sitting room and study for myself the copy of the letter I had made, as well as to replace the original in the hem of the bathrobe where Lillian had hidden it.

Underwood Worried.

I knew better, however, than to permit any indication of my impatience to escape me. My father was as anxious to have the original replaced in its hiding place as I could possibly be, and I was aware that both he and Lillian's husband were acutely worried about her reaction to the receipt of the letter.

Therefore, I controlled my shaking knees and my tremulous pulses as best I could before entering the library and spoke with outward calm, at least.

"I am sorry to have taken so much time," I said, "but I tried to imitate Marion's handwriting, which took longer than I thought. And we couldn't get hold of any paper identical with these originals."

Praised By Her Father.

"You haven't been long at all," he said, as he took the papers from me. "Instead you have been incredibly swift."

He gave the copies a searching glance, then compared them with the originals.

"A wonderfully clever job," he was pleased to say at last. "And the paper doesn't matter. Look, Harry!"

Mr. Underwood's spirits evidently had been lifted somewhat from utter despondency while I had been gone, and I surmised that my father had shown him the code book which Mary had devised for Marion in their childhood.

"Is there anything you can't do, Lady Fair?" he asked extravagantly—and, I knew, sincerely.

"I can't get those originals back in the hem of Lillian's robe until I get them back from you two," I said.

"You shall have them in less than three minutes," my father said. "I want to compare them once more. Is there anything you would like to do while you wait?"

"Yes, I'd like to look at that code book," I answered.

"Thank you," I said. Then sinking into the nearest chair, I riffled its pages until I came to the list of cliches which Marion had used for certain hidden meanings.

I knew that my father and Harry Underwood would be using the book immediately, and I felt that I could not wait for them to finish with it, before investigating Marion's letter to her mother.

Studies Sheets of Flimsy.

Applying the principles in which my little mother, so long gone from me, had trained me in my childhood, I went over the sheets of flimsy which had been tucked into the concealed pocket of the book, and by the time my father turned from his second comparison of Marion's original letter and envelope with my copy, I was ready to close the code book and return it to its place on the table.

"Here are the originals," my father said, handing them to me. "When you have finished sewing them back again, will you please come down here—that is, if Miss Whitlock doesn't need you with Lillian?"

CHAPTER XXIV

"You got the blues lately, Thad? How about telling the old family physician all about it? Maybe a dose of iron and—"

"He's moonstruck," M. J. put in.

They let it go at that. Dal paid for the drinks and then went away in response to a telephone call from a sick woman. Thad and M. J. went out to sit in Thad's car.

"Hell of a world we live in," Thad began, despondently.

"Go on," M. J. urged. "You've got a woe. Spill it."

"Um huhm."

M. J. dropped the tone of levity. "I'd tell you if ever I wanted any help, Thad. Or even if I just wanted to talk."

Thad touched the other boy's knee in gesture of thanks. "I know it."

"Well?"

"Well, keep it under your hat, but Lillian promised to marry me. I'm not joking."

"No. But you aren't singing, either."

"That's the point I'm coming to."

"All right. So you're engaged," M. J. summed it up. "Maybe you have been so for quite a while. But now you've got doubts."

"How'd you know that?"

"I guessed. I keep my eyes open, mostly."

Thad nodded. They were silent for a long minute, man fashion.

"You—love the girl?" M. J. finally asked.

"Wouldn't I?"

"Yump."

"All right, then."

"You love her very deeply? And now I'm not joking. I mean, did you really go off the deep end, Thad?"

"The whole works, kid." He nodded again, grimly.

"Hmmm. I thought as much. I been looking on, maybe envying a little and sympathizing here lately. How much guts you got?"

That contemplated that. "I don't know. How you mean?"

"I think you're going to have to—to take it. To play the old part. There's precedent for it, I believe; in real life, as well as in the story books. Now you take—baseball—a sacrifice hit gets you out, but the other guy may score. See? And the team wins."

Thad's lips clamped tight and his eyes narrowed, but he nodded in understanding. M. J. didn't say any more; this quiet young man had depth anyway, sense enough to know when a job was done. A half minute passed. He glanced at Thad and in the dim light of the car here on Public Square saw there a reflection of infinite despair. Thad's chin was quavvering ever so little; with his thumb then he gestured toward the car door.

M. J. got out, squeezing his friend's wrist quickly in parting. Then he stood and stared after Thad as the car drove away. "It's a mistake," M. J. told himself miserably, "to say a strong man can't cry." Even his own throat felt a little choked.

Girlish shrieks and laughter emanated from the shrubbery that enclosed the Mayfield side lawn. Jason heard it and frowned; he thought he recognized one of the voices. To give himself ample excuse for investigating he made a tray of cold drinks and took it out there.

"Lawd Amighty!" he exclaimed, staring. "Miss Baby Doll, ma'am you ain't got no sense!"

"No, Jason."

"Here you is rompin, aroun' on yo' feets! You get back in that house befor' I has to whup you!"

It was mock discipline, fond discipline, but it was tinged with reality too. Baby Doll Mayfield had hung her head bandage on a bush and was playing a fast game of badminton with Jeannie Baughman. Apparently no catastrophe has resulted nor was about to, but the shooting was only 11 days past and Jason wanted due tribute paid to it.

Dutifully, therefore, the spirited girl took her bandage and adjusted it on her head again, as if it were a hat or a peasant handkerchief. She had contrived to cut the white material in a shape and twist that was actually becoming.

Still talking brightly with Jeannie, she went back inside the house and lay down on the chaise lounge, pulled a light blanket over her feet and resumed her role as invalid. Old Jason tucked her in. In all seriousness he felt her pulse, tested her forehead for possible fever, made her stick out her tongue. He shook his head ominously. He hadn't a symptom to cling to but he wouldn't admit it even to himself.

"I tells Dr. Watkins his own self on you," he threatened, and hobbled out of the room.

He had rocked down the hall and turned into the kitchen when the front door bell rang. Even though not fittingly dressed to be a butler at the moment, he went to answer. It was a delivery boy with a rather large package addressed to Baby Doll. He took that in and went on his way.

"Open it, Baby! Hurry!" Jeannie begged.

"Well I am, silly!"

"Whatever is it?"

"It's heavy. I believe it's—yes sir, it is. It's a box of candy, Jeannie! The expensive kind!" Hastily she inspected the address tag again. Unmistakably it was meant for her, not Lillian.

Tied to the inner ribbon over the cellophane was a dainty envelope containing a message. Baby Doll, bright-eyed, tore it open quickly. "Martin must have—" She left her sentence hanging as she read.

"Please, Baby Doll!" Jeannie bursting with interest.

"Oh goodness, Jeannie!"

"What is it? Who, I mean? From who?"

"Oh-h-h-h!" Baby Doll was squeezing every ounce of thrill.

"Is it from Martin Deale?"

"Jeannie—no! Guess who! You'd never in all the wide world! I—why I never was so surprised in all my li-i-fe!"

Patently Baby Doll was going to exact all possible tribute in jealous curiosity from her friend. She maintained the suspense.

"It's the nicest box of candy any man ever sent me!"

Jeannie wasn't whipped. "Did anybody ever send you one before?"

Baby Doll capitulated then. "Imagine—it's from Dal Tower!"

That really was something! Jeannie stared.

"Listen, Jeannie—what he says: 'Dear Miss Dorothy: I hope feelings everywhere have cooled so that I may speak now. And yet I hesitate to intrude again in person, wherefore I am sending this little token of gratitude for your having saved my life. I understand your motive well enough; you jumped more to save Martin than me, which is all to the good. But in any event it was a courageous and beautiful thing to do, and I shall never forget it. Dr. Watkins keeps me informed about your wound. I am happy to know it amounted to so little. Again—please accept my heart-felt thanks. Yours, Dallas Tower.' O-h-h-h-h-h, Jeannie!"

It was sufficient to lift the two 'tween-age friends all that day and longer. They read the note again and again. They telephoned it to other friends. Before sundown that day practically everybody who was anybody in town knew about it. Dal Tower, that good-looking young doctor. You know, the one who was rushing Lillian Mayfield, the one Martin Deale shot at when he hit Baby Doll. Goodness!

If Mrs. Millicent Mayfield had been any less strong of chartster she would surely have succumbed to what is known as a nervous breakdown. The state of her bank account and the constant possibility of oil on her lawn kept her up and going.

That same oil well, which just might lift her financial embarrassment, was also horrible in her sight. She took to going through her side yard and through Mrs. Frankie Haltom's property whenever she left home, to avoid walking right by the derrick and its machinery and men.

"That's being silly," Lillian chided her. "What's there is there, mother. You're just being an ostrich about it."

"Oh, dear."

"And anyway the engineer says there really is an excellent possibility of oil. They wouldn't have leased the land from you if they didn't think so, Thad says."

"I suppose so. If there is oil, then you and Thad—you can—how much longer will it take? The drilling, I mean?" Mrs. Mayfield got all her news of the well from Lillian.

"They're down 2,700 feet. They don't know how far they'll go."

"Aren't you buying anything for your trousseau, dear? I should think—"

"No. I'm busy now."

"What doing? You don't stay at home much."

Lillian didn't answer. She didn't want to get involved in personal talk. She didn't want to have to think about personal affairs, as a matter of fact, and especially did she not want to think about a trousseau.

Nevertheless she did slip into personal thinking while she was going this morning to the family car. She drove off on a mission of her own and she was distinctly unhappy, not about the mission but about herself, inside.

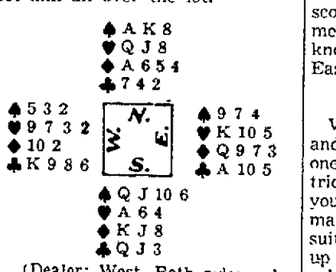
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T RESCUE THE FOE

IT IS ALL well and good for an ambulance driver to pick up one of the enemy who has been wounded, and take the poor devil to where he can receive merciful care. But to give him able first aid, and then send him back to his own outfit, ready to do some more shooting would hardly be in line with an ambulance man's job. So it is with a bridge player who during the bidding hears an opponent make a bid which he can double and set with disastrous effect. His job is not to make another bid and so rescue the bad bidder from his predicament. Double him, and set him all over the lot.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	1 NT	(?)

What is it South did after East's 1-No Trump call? Dinged if we remember. We made no note of it, it was so terrible. It was either 2-diamonds or 2-Spades, and the side got into 3-No Trumps, making it with an extra trick, the way the play went.

South's job was clear-cut. How in the world could East, except with a rare freak, ever make any number of No Trumps if North had an opening bid? East and West had no suit to use as a rescue if doubled, and would have had to try to make the 1-No Trump. Natural play could be the spade Q to the K, heart Q to the K and A, heart 6 to the J, diamond 4 to the J, the diamond K, diamond A, spade A, spade 8 to the J and the spade 10, giving the defenders the first nine tricks and setting the contract three for a score of 800, much better than a mere game. Opportunity was knocking on South's door when East bid, but he couldn't hear.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Why are guarded kings, queens and jacks, or even unguarded ones, more valuable as prospective trick-takers in your hand after you have heard your partner make an opening bid, of either suit or No Trump? Can you set up several illustrations of the principle involved?

Mansfield News-Journal

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 11, 1941.

Drive carefully tomorrow—and please relay the same message to other members of the family.

The man who makes a better mousetrap will probably have to cut down production because he can't get materials.

Fate at last seems to be catching up with George Sylvester Viereck, along with less brilliant immigrants accused of misusing their citizenship.

Defense Contracts for Mansfield

SPREAD of the news that Mansfield industries were in need of defense orders, to offset restricted production of consumer goods, was so quickly followed by action along this line that there is merit in the view of a Westinghouse spokesman that this came about "because of the effort made to focus attention on Mansfield as a town which would be seriously affected by curtailment of consumer durable goods production."

Whatever causes may have entered into the award of additional defense contracts to Mansfield industries, it has become apparent that the Chamber of Commerce and management of local industries have entered whole-heartedly into the task of presenting Mansfield's claims to recognition in the distribution of defense work and there is every reason for confidence that further allocations are in process.

In some instances, of course, adjustment to production changes will take a little time, but with the present high total of industrial employment, plus opportunities for mercantile employment and shortage of skilled craftsmen in various trades, outlook for the winter in Mansfield may be regarded as brighter than it has been for several years.

If buying, in relation to earnings, can be kept to a normal pace there is no apparent justification for pessimism—in fact an attitude of pessimism is about the worst thing that could happen just now to individuals, cities, or the country as a whole.

There's a big job to be done by the United States of America and every Mansfielder is obligated to share in the task—a part of which is to cheerfully and energetically continue the American way of life—earn, spend, save. Buy what you can afford to have, but don't overbuy of articles on which production has been restricted.

Taking Exercise By Proxy

FOOTBALL AND BASEBALL, as philosophic observers know, are not merely sports. They are largely, and perhaps primarily, what psychologists call an "escape." People throng to games by tens of thousands to watch two small groups of men playing a game that they would like to play themselves, if they had the skill or energy or opportunity. For a little while they can put themselves in the players' places, imagine themselves performing brilliant athletic feats and go home satisfied or disgusted, as the case may be, with what "their team" has done.

There is drama, too. That is a large part of it, and one reason why women take more and more interest in the games. But probably the mental "escape" theory still holds good.

Back of all this mental and emotional stress is the sad fact of the athletic slump of civilized man. The more civilization progresses, as gauged by the usual standards, the more we take our play and exercise by proxy, the less vigorous our bodies become, the more we tend to lose our natural physical skills. Childhood and youth still retain a good deal of vigor and find outlets for it, but most grown-ups tend to grow physically soft and remain in that condition.

There seems to be more hope lately for women. They are taking to the athletic life as men recede from it.

Partial Taboo On Gambling

THE SUBJECT of commercialized gambling looms up again, to the annoyance and embarrassment of law enforcement officials, who never seem to know what to do about it.

Most recent administration move is against "money boards," which seem to be a miniature version of lottery, with money instead of merchandise given to the occasional winners.

Quite recently there was an order from the state liquor board that slot machines and all gambling devices must be removed from private clubs which sold liquor, and shortly before that Mayor Locke stated belief that gambling "should not be seen"—so a bingo game moved from a first floor to a second floor room and was thereafter undisturbed.

Location of bookie operations have also been quite consistently held to the second floor, although this may have been for the greater seclusion of patrons than because of police dictation—the police policy having been that not more than one illegal bookie place could operate in the city.

If, as Mayor Locke says, "it has been a standing order", since he came into office, that gambling devices must be removed, it may appear that the police department—usually efficient—lacks enthusiasm in this particular phase of law enforcement.

Children Rally To Defense

AN IDEA that children in the United States are taking a lively interest in national defense is gained from the outcome of a recent poll which disclosed willingness of many children to buy defense savings stamps and bonds.

The question was, what would the child do if given $100 "all his own," and the answer of one out of every three was that he would invest the entire amount in defense savings bonds.

Ten thousand children in all parts of the country were included in the poll, which was conducted with co-operation of the Y. M. C. A. and other groups sponsoring summer camps.

Thirty-five per cent of the boys and twenty-eight per cent of the girls, representing thirty-three per cent of all children in the poll said they would invest the $100 in defense bonds. Forty-seven per cent said they would put the money in the bank, one per cent would buy toys, seven per cent would purchase clothing, and two per cent would take "special lessons."

According to testimony at the New York trial of a couple of labor leaders on extortion charges, it took a lot of money to buy off Bioff.

Unless the government puts a ceiling over prices, consumers will soon start raising the roof.

The trouble with pro and con debates is that they are mostly con.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—I listened to a discussion of famous promoters and sports characters at a restaurant off Broadway last night, and though everybody from Tex Rickard and his Klondike Shenanigans to Ruth Ederle, the channel swimmer, came in for discussion, nobody happened to hit on Douglas Hertz, who probably has led the most adventurous life of them all.

Hertz is owner of the New York Football Yankees and a promoter of wide talents and experiences. . . . For twelve years he was a captain in the British army. He was on the Lusitania when it was torpedoed during the World war. . . . Later he organized a series of widely-ballyhooed pig races in Florida, acquired a polo club in New Jersey, and became the owner of several nightclubs. Recently John Kimbrough, the All-American football star from Texas, came under the interested gaze of Hertz and he gave the star a $35,500 contract without even bothering to inquire what position Kimbrough played. . . . But in this Hertz was only being consistent. . . . Though he owns the Yankees, he has never seen a game of football.

IN ADDITION to being a widely known and highly-paid strip-tease dancer, it now appears that Gypsy Rose Lee is a voluminous letter writer. A batch of her epistles have just been made public by the publishers who are bringing out Gypsy's mystery-thriller, "The G-String Murders" this fall. . . . The reasons the letters werep ublished in an attractive little brochure is that nobody believed Gypsy really wrote the book herself. . . .

Skeptics are continually asking Lee Wright, "Who's the ghost?" . . . So Wright gathered up all Gypsy's correspondence, written on hotel stationery from San Francisco's Fairmont to Detroit's Book Cadillac and made them public. . . . Some of the lines make your eyes pop.

This isn't placed here with the idea of antagonizing the ladies, but Alfred Wallenstein insists no woman can tune in a radio station properly. . . . "The most serious music lovers are doctors and chess players," he says, "which may explain why most musicians are interested in medicine and chess." Wallenstein himself studied surgery before becoming a successful conductor.

HERE'S a nice piece of descriptive writing after witnessing a storm on the Caribbean. . . . "The sun rose like a gigantic sliced beet out of a blue platter, drenching the sail with hues of blood and splattering the waves" —From Emile Gauvreau's "My Last Million Readers." . . .

The movies are going to film an old Broadway musical comedy, "Hit the Deck," but most of the musical score will be discarded and a new score written. The lone exception is the number "Hallelulah," which prompts this corner to inquire. Why toss out "Sometimes I'm Happy"? which was one of the most pleasing and popular ditties ever composed.

Will High Taxes Affect Voting?

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—Joe Martin, chairman of the Republican national committee and G. O. P. leader in the house of representatives, believes taxes are working up the folks to an extent which may give the Republicans control of the house of representatives, as well as gains in the senate, next year.

Martin is not given much to wishful thinking. He is a shrewd politician and has proved a remarkably able leader in congress even though he won no particular glory as national chairman in last year's campaign. In fact if it were not for a wholesome respect for Martin's opinion, discussion of taxes as the issue would seem rather silly.

The point is that the war situation may be very grave in November, 1942, when the voters select the new house and, at least one-third of the senate. This country may be in the war by that time—probably will be. Even if it is not, there is small likelihood of our not being even more committed to the defeat of Adolf Hitler by that time than we are now. The Nazis are reported to hate us pretty strongly at present, but surely, assuming the war continues, they will have plenty of cause to hate us more by that time.

In fact, still assuming that the war is in progress at that time, Hitler's excuse to the German people for not having achieved victory long since probably will be laid on the American doorsteps. In his recent broadcast Hitler for the first time publicly admitted a mistake—that he had under-estimated the Russian armament. In the same speech he scoffed at American aid—by inference.

BY NOVEMBER, 1942, still assuming continuance of the war, he will be admitting another mistake, this time that he had under-estimated, in October, 1941, the aid his enemies could obtain overseas.

Now suppose we assume that the above is a fairly accurate forecast of the war situation precisely one year hence. And suppose further that Joe Martin and his fellow Republican speakers and leaders were attempting to capitalize the tax issue.

Isn't it obvious that FDR would appeal to the country, or have some of his lieutenants do it, on the notion that defeat of a Democratic majority in the house election would be construed all over the world as a repudiation of America's aid to Hitler's enemies —in short that a Republican victory would be a tremendous encouragement to Germany and a terrific discouragement to Britain, not to mention Russia, if that country is still holding out?

SOME may point out that Woodrow Wilson tried to do precisely this, in 1918, and the reaction of the country was so unfavorable that the Republicans captured the house, which they hoped to do, and also the senate, a victory for which they had entertained no hope whatever.

There are two answers to this: One is that Wilson in 1918, was suffering from bitter resentments of two kinds. The people who had voted for him two years before on the "kept us out of war" issue felt betrayed. Various national groups felt that he had trampled on the rights of their racial cousins in Europe.

The second answer is that the Wilson appeal in 1918 was colored unfortunately. It seemed to put the stamp of near treason on the Republicans, and at that time, there was no blinking the fact that normally the country was Republican.

If the administration should be worried about the election prospect in 1942 it would be possible to put the appeal much more tactfully, and so forcefully that it would be interesting to see whether many ardent Republican newspapers, for example, would be able to resist it!

Listen World!

Don't Sell Yourself

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

FREE-SPEECH"—most of us still take it for granted. We've always had it . . . we've never had to suffer for it. We can pick up any newspaper page, or turn the dial in any radio, and be assured of honest, wide-open action. They don't shoot us here for listening to a British broadcast, as they are doing in Norway and Germany.

But don't comfort yourself too much with that thought. For, despite our rosy illusions, Free Speech is not an inalienable right. It can be taken from us, as it has been taken from other people.

You can be robbed of free speech by the most subtle devices and never know you've lost it until it is too late. . . . and, believe me, many a mister big is making passes in that direction!

Obviously, a certain amount of sane restraint is always essential. Sensible people do not run around telling all they know, regardless of risk. Decent people do not permit obscenity . . . nor indulge in malicious abuse. These restraints are regarded as natural and necessary checks on lip liberty, and are voluntarily respected.

But when perfectly normal utterances are twisted out of their original pattern and given new and sinister meanings, either to serve the ends of some group or to harass some individual, look out! That isn't just a front-page story. That's a situation which is bound to change the course of your personal life. And you'd better start looking into it.

The current agitation over War Propaganda in Hollywood is a case in print. It is claimed that the magnificent new picture, "Sergeant York," is a vicious example of war mongering. America, cry these claimants, is being pushed into war by the passion and pathos of its appeal. Maybe so! But I've seen "Sergeant York."

AND IF THAT'S PROPAGANDA, I'M A HUMMING BIRD!

"Sergeant York" is a straight story of a lusty American and his incredibly brave deed. You can read various shades of meaning into it, as you can into any act or speech. But it's not "pushing" America, save in the sense that we're all "pushed" into courage by the sight of a brave deed, or "pushed" into rage by the pity aroused by a dastardly one.

IF IT'S "WAR MONGERING" TO APPLAUD THE HERO AND HISS THE VILLAIN, THEN YOU CAN FIND PROPAGANDA IN THE SIMPLEST FILM. EVEN IN DONALD DUCK. PERSONALLY, I'VE LONG SUSPECTED SUBVERSIVE INFLUENCES IN HIS STRIDENT SQUAWK!

Grins aside, the real menace in this Hollywood shakedown isn't the question of Sergeant York's political status, but the fact that the picture record of a great life can be—and is being—used to spread doubt and dismay . . . and thereby limit our right to Free Expression.

If we permit any group of individual to censor this worthy appeal to patriotism, we are striking to the roots of all our democratic traditions . . . no injury which Hitler or Mussolini could possibly inflict upon us could equal the viciousness of such a blow.

But why should Americans wish to inflict a blow upon their brothers? For the simple reason which has inspired every rabble-rousing campaign—they've an axe to grind. And the quickest way to grind it is to put somebody, anybody, into the dog house.

Don't let them do it! As a nation we're emotionally unstable just now, beset and bewildered by changes and fears. It's easy to "put something over." We'll respond easily to any popular slogan. Don't let it happen!

If this sort of thing continues, Hitler will not need to invade these shores. Our "100 percent American" Peeping Toms will do his dirty work for him. And they won't need a Terrorist Trainer to tell them how. If they just stick around, they'll see all the moves.

The Night

—By HELEN LOOMIS LINHAM

Night brings such sure release
from woe and care.
And burdens magnified throughout the day;
The tranquility, God seems to
share
Of heaven then, in such a vivid
way;
The dark is friendly to a heart
that grieves.
And many are the eyes that
seek the stars
For peace, and solitude that somehow leaves
A purity, erasing earthly scars.

Oh, you that walk in sorrow and
in woe,
Abide the shadows and the vel-
vet space;
I think God surely planned the
darkness so,
Remembering, and with a know-
ing grace;
And as the heart is calmed, and
hours creep,
He gently whispers, "Sleep, oh
children, sleep!"

Summary of Week's Happenings

Neutrality Law Up for Revision, President Asks for Quick Action

—By ASSOCIATED PRESS

ON SEPT. 23 the American-owned Pink Star, sailing under the flag of Panama, was torpedoed while en route to Iceland. The sinking gave occasion to President Roosevelt to mention that perhaps the neutrality law had better be modified.

Washington was abuzz early in the week over the sinking of another ship, also American-owned and under Panamanian colors. It was the tanker I. C. White, which Captain William Mello said was attacked without warning off the Brazilian coast even though spotlights were shining on her flag.

Administration circles seized on the White sinking as a peg onto which to hang their demands for modification of the neutrality act. Secretary Hull called it "another act of lawlessness, piracy and attempted frightfulness" and said the question had simmered down to this: "If somebody is moving in some peaceful person's direction with a gun in his hand, it is time for that other person to defend himself."

Nye Recalls 1917.

By the time the president and his advisers went into a huddle to decide on the modification message to be sent to congress, the lines of debate were pretty well drawn. A poll indicated that the senate would approve some change but only over substantial opposition. The house has been more hostile to FDR's foreign policy.

Senator Nye (R-N.D.), an opponent of the administration's foreign policy, remarked: "I don't know what is going to happen, but I do know what happened to Wilson's bill. History could repeat itself." (In March, 1917, twelve U. S. senators talked to death President Wilson's proposal to arm merchant ships.)

In a message to congress Thursday the president asked for quick action to permit arming U. S. merchant ships.

Right in the middle of all the talk, Panama pointed up the issue by forbidding the arming of merchantmen flying her flag. The president said this made neutrality revision all the more necessary, but some of his opponents asked why American-owned ships couldn't simply register with another Latin American country.

By a coup d'etat Panama's President Arnulfo Arias was succeeded by Ricardo Adolfo de La-Guardia, said to be more favorable to collaboration with the United States.

New Lend-Lease Bill.

The president's new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease bill was started through congress with its backers crying that "clouds of airplanes" and "acres of tanks" are needed to beat Hitler. Republicans grumbled that very little of the first lend-lease appropriation had been spent, but the Aeronautical Chamber of Commerce pointed out that there "seems to be a misconception that the only equipment going abroad is that which is labelled lend-lease," whereas nearly $280,000,000 worth of aeronautical equipment had been sent to Britain this year under old orders.

The report of the house appropriations committee told of testimony by Admiral Land, chairman of the Maritime Commission, that within a year the U. S. will be building so many ships that Germany will have to increase sinkings to a point "greater than they have ever been before" to keep up with production.

At Home

What to Do?

Washington is getting more and more worried about inflation. Several methods for preventing it, or at least controlling it, are being discused by congressmen. They range from price and wage control to President Roosevelt's suggestion of broadening the social security program.

Another anti-inflation idea is control of installment buying, already in effect. Security Director McNutt said during the week he didn't think this was "a democratic way" because rich people can pay cash for a new radio but the poor man can't make the first installment. He also was opposed to social security expansion.

As Budget Director Smith estimated that defense would cost $135 for every person in the country this fiscal year. Thurman Arnold, justice department anti-trust chief, said the biggest price increases were in food and clothing, "where shortages have not yet developed."

"This proves," he said, "that . . . it is the pyramiding of distribution costs by private groups in strategic positions that is creating most of the inflation."

America Arms.

September delivery of military planes hit a record of 1,914—with more of them actual fighting planes than trainers than ever before. An OPM official said "I see no reason why 2,500 military planes a month should not be produced by the end of the year."

The navy, too, announced "astounding" progress. It said keels for its two-ocean fleet are being laid at the rate of more than one a day.

Ford Feels Auto Curb.

In Detroit, Henry Ford's personnel chief, Harry Bennett, announced that because of curtailment of auto production forced by the national defense, 20,000 men would be laid off at the big Rouge plant.

But as OPM officials arrived in Detroit to offer auto makers additional work, a spokesman for CIO-UAW said only 5,400 workers would be laid off, and those either probationary or non-production men.

A Killer Curbed.

Syphilis used to be a nasty word that you didn't use in public. In the early '30s public health officials began to strip away the prudishness that surrounded this terrible disease and, to educate people about how to control it. Now 26 states require that couples who are going to marry must first take a blood test.

The Council of State Governments has just finished a survey of 16 states (the ones that have had a blood test law long enough to show results) and reports only 1.28 percent of those taking the test had syphilis. The American Social Hygiene Association estimates that 3.24 percent of the adults in the country as a whole have it.

AFL to 'Give All'?

Boomed AFL President Green as his group's national convention got off to a boisterous start:

"We are going to advise the president of the United States we will give all we have in the support of his program."

Next day FDR sent the convenestablishment of peace between labor organizations would be a patriotic step." Green said FDR had better talk to the CIO about that.

A striking example of AFL-CIO feuding was on hand. Federal Works Administrator John Carmody disclosed that he had held up the award of a contract to the low bidder on a big defense housing contract in Wayne county, Mich.

Carmody said he feared that granting the contract would bring howls from AFL.

Mars Draws Nearer.

Our neighbor, Mars, is the closest it will be for the next 15 years. In fact it is only 38 million miles distant. Its brilliance makes it seem like a most accessible jewel hung not far out of reach to ornament the evening sky. As the great red planet attracts especial attention, the old questions are asked over again. Is Mars inhabited? Were the canals seen on its surface built for irrigation or something? Are the green areas observed through the telescope actually vegetation?

To all these the astronomers have only jests. Let the cartoonists with their Skygacks from Mars, the inventors with their comic rockets, and Orson Welles with the creeps bother about the Martians. The astronomers do not take the sociological view.—Toledo Blade.

Abroad

Spoils Surprise.

Adolf Hitler doesn't usually tell what he's going to do until after he's done it, but in his winter relief rally speech he broke his custom. While admitting that the Russians still were far from licked, he proclaimed that "a gigantic new development" was under way.

The world had to wait three more days before it found out what the big news was. It turned out to be another wallop at Moscow. The drive along the road to Moscow from the Smolensk area was renewed, another drive pressed down from the Valdai hills, 175 miles north, and a third drive started from the area of Bryansk, 150 miles to the south.

British and American diplomats in Turkey were annoyed, but noted philosophically that lots can happen before 1943.

Highwater Recedes.

The highwater mark of Japan's four-year effort to overrun China is Ichang on the Yangtze. It is 800 miles from the coast but still 300 miles from Chungking. Nippon's warriors reached Ichang two years ago but have gone no farther.

Japan acknowledged that a great Chinese offensive has swept past Ichang and on 60 miles to Shasi but she did not immediately admit that Ichang had fallen. Later Chungking reported that Ichang was encircled. Capture of the city probably would be regarded as China's greatest victory of the war.

TO ATTEND MEET.

Members of the Willing Workers society of the Little Washington church held their regular all day quilting meeting Thursday at the church. Plans were discussed to attend a convention of the Women's Missionary society of Congregational Christian churches that is being held Wednesday in Wooster. The day was spent quilting and a covered dish dinner was served at noon.

Beau and Girl Styles

Beau and girl fashions have extended themselves this year right into the actual fabric which makes the clothes. Here you see Him and Her in smart fly-front campus jackets, His of cordurez, the modern new corduroy for men, and Hers of cordurella, the new weightless corduroy for women. Her jacket is a bit shorter than His and closes on the feminine side, of course, but it's obviously a "steal" from the masculine wardrobe.

Sigma Kappa Gamma Sorority Has Party

Sigma Kappa Gamma sorority members held a party recently at the Liberty park pavilion. Thirty members and guests were in attendance. During the evening a mock wedding was presented by the members. Taking part in the play were Miss Dorothy Blackstone, Miss Eileen Minard, Miss Ruby Rowe and Miss Dorothy Kelley.

Dancing was the diversion of the evening. Luncheon was served at the close of the meeting. The next session will be held Oct. 16 at the home of Mrs. William Hoffman, 16 Glen Beck lane, with Miss Minard as associate hostess. A business meeting will be held Oct. 23 at the city building. PROSPECT MOTHERS.

Twenty-five attended the covered dish dinner meeting held at the Prospect school by the Mothers' club Thursday afternoon. Officers were hostesses for the day. Mrs. Harold Gorsuch was named the new secretary and Mrs. Hugh Scott, assistant secretary. It was decided to spend the year's session doing Red Cross work instead of giving programs. The next regular meeting will be held Nov. 13 at the building in charge of Mrs. H. H. Light.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 12.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds excellent testimonies for the conventional vocations and avocations of the Sabbath. There should be expansive and flourishing conditions in all ecclesiastical, intellectual and professional affairs, with social, convival and friendly pastimes promising much pleasure and gratification.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very progressive and productive year, with all pertaining to writings, publicity, communications, travel, in fact all professional as well as commercial interests affording much success and satisfaction. The element of the social, cultural, companionship as well as sentimental may combine to promote a warm, happy and pleasant year.

For Monday, October 13.

Monday's astrological forecast is for a rather contradictory state of affairs, with most propitious promises negatived by oppositions and antagonisms both from major and minor sources. This may all be provoked by rash, impetuous, violent and belligerent tendencies run out of hand into danger, loss, perhaps bodily mishap or physical ills. Finances are promising, but those in high places may not be co-operative, being exasperated by turbulent and tempestuous conduct.

Those whose birthday it is may find their own ungoverned and wayward behavior as their "worst enemy" during the year. Such tempestuous, violent, intemperate conduct may incite opposition from those in high places as well as from a lesser status.

MRS. HAUTZENROEDER TO HEAD BUCKEYE CLUB

Election of Officers Held At Final Meeting of Garden Club Friday Afternoon At Home of Retiring President, Mrs. Howard Peck.

MRS. LEONARD HAUTZENROEDER was named president of the Buckeye Garden club at their regular meeting held Friday at The Woods, near Ashland. Mrs. Thornton Lake was chairman of arrangements for the luncheon meeting attended by 10 members. This was the last session until spring. Other officers who will assist with club duties for the coming year are Mrs. Lake, vice president; Mrs. Deming Lowrey, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. Louis Wenger, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Francis O'Brien, horticultural chairman; Mrs. Thomas Siegenthaler, conservation chairman; Mrs. Robert Frey, garden center representative.

Following the luncheon the group motored to the home of the retiring president, Mrs. Howard Peck, Brae Burn. At the close of the business session a social time was enjoyed. On Oct. 18 the club members will entertain their husbands with a dinner party at the Hotel Talbott, Galion. Planning for the affair are Mrs. Peck, chairman, Mrs. Gene Zediker and Mrs. Jack Berno.

Class Meeting Held at Piper Home on Friday

Members of the Love and Friendship class of the Mayflower Congregational church held a meeting Friday evening at the home of Mrs. J. D. Piper, North Mulberry street. Three guests, Mrs. J. R. Heilman, Mrs. Dan Edwards and Mrs. Lewis C. Rein, were in attendance. Devotions were led by Miss Lucille Boyer and Mrs. Roscoe Harter.

Readings were given by Miss Imagene Bennett and Mrs. Edwards. A short business session was conducted by Mrs. Ralph Bloom, president. Mrs. Kenneth Ross was welcomed as a new member into the class. Plans were made to hold a Halloween party Oct. 29 at the church. All adult church members are welcome to attend. Contests were played during the evening and prizes won by Miss Bennett and Miss Grace Finical. Luncheon was served. The next session will be held Nov. 11 at the home of Mrs. Mary Ross, 323 Longview avenue.

ATLAS CLUB MEETS.

Mrs. Kenneth Donelson, Garfield place, was hostess to members of the Atlas club at her home last evening. Pictures of her western trip were shown and the evening spent socially. At a late hour a buffet luncheon was served. Announcement of the time and place of the next meeting will be made later.

Two Papers Given At Garden Study Club Meeting

Mrs. W. S. Valmore, Cook road, was hostess to members of the Mansfield Garden Study club Friday afternoon at her home. Luncheon was served at noon with autumn flowers decorating the serving table. Each one was presented with a V-insignia as a favor. During the afternoon a program was presented by Mrs. E. C. Jenkins on "Evergreens" and Mrs. A. J. Barker on "Fall Flowers."

Later flower arrangements were discussed by the group. Twelve members and one guest, Mrs. Laura McDaniel of Long Beach, Calif., a house guest of Mrs. O. H. McDaniel, were present. The next meeting will be held Oct. 24 at the home of Mrs. H. W. Peterson, 429 Park avenue west.

ENTERTAIN FRIENDS.

Mrs. David Brangaccio, Park avenue west, entertained a group of friends from Mansfield and Galion Thursday at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Shumaker, west of Galion. The morning was spent in horseback riding after which a buffet luncheon was served at the home. The afternoon was spent in cards. Later the group motored to the home of Mrs. Roy Beck, Park avenue west road, for an evening of bridge.

DINNER PARTY.

Mrs. Chester Secrist was in charge of the dinner meeting held Friday evening at the Staiger tea room by members of the Busy Bee club. Dinner was served at 6 p. m. at a long table decorated with crystal and garden flowers. Bunco was played and prizes won by Mrs. Lial Ish, Mrs. Mary Somers and Mrs. Secrist. Plans were made to hold a Halloween party Oct. 24 at the home of Mrs. Earl Black, Woodland road. Mrs. Somers will serve as associate hostess.

"Pitfalls of Love"

By ADELE GARRISON

MY KNEES were distinctly shaking as I went down the stairs of the Underwood house to the library, where my father and Harry Underwood awaited me. I had the consciousness of work well done to sustain me, but I was afraid that I had taken too long a time for it.

That the papers I bore held a tangible clue to the mystery surrounding Marion I was sure, even though I doubted that any indication of her present whereabouts was contained in it.

But I was on fire to get back to Lillian's sitting room and study for myself the copy of the letter I had made, as well as to replace the original in the hem of the bathrobe where Lillian had hidden it.

Underwood Worried.

I knew better, however, than to permit any indication of my impatience to escape me. My father was as anxious to have the original replaced in its hiding place as I could possibly be, and I was aware that both he and Lillian's husband were acutely worried about her reaction to the receipt of the letter.

Therefore, I controlled my shaking knees and my tremulous pulses as best I could before entering the library and spoke with outward calm, at least.

"I am sorry to have taken so much time," I said, "but I tried to imitate Marion's handwriting, which took longer than I thought. And we couldn't get hold of any paper identical with these originals."

Praised By Her Father.

"You haven't been long at all," he said, as he took the papers from me. "Instead you have been incredibly swift."

He gave the copies a searching glance, then compared them with the originals.

"A wonderfully clever job," he was pleased to say at last. "And the paper doesn't matter. Look, Harry!"

Mr. Underwood's spirits evidently had been lifted somewhat from utter despondency while I had been gone, and I surmised that my father had shown him the code book which Mary had devised for Marion in their childhood.

"Is there anything you can't do, Lady Fair?" he asked extravagantly—and, I knew, sincerely.

"I can't get those originals back in the hem of Lillian's robe until I get them back from you two," I said.

"You shall have them in less than three minutes," my father said. "I want to compare them once more. Is there anything you would like to do while you wait?"

"Yes, I'd like to look at that code book," I answered.

"Thank you," I said. Then sinking into the nearest chair, I riffled its pages until I came to the list of cliches which Marion had used for certain hidden meanings.

I knew that my father and Harry Underwood would be using the book immediately, and I felt that I could not wait for them to finish with it, before investigating Marion's letter to her mother.

Studies Sheets of Flimsy.

Applying the principles in which my little mother, so long gone from me, had trained me in my childhood, I went over the sheets of flimsy which had been tucked into the concealed pocket of the book, and by the time my father turned from his second comparison of Marion's original letter and envelope with my copy, I was ready to close the code book and return it to its place on the table.

"Here are the originals," my father said, handing them to me. "When you have finished sewing them back again, will you please come down here—that is, if Miss Whitlock doesn't need you with Lillian?"

CHAPTER XXIV

"You got the blues lately, Thad? How about telling the old family physician all about it? Maybe a dose of iron and—"

"He's moonstruck," M. J. put in.

They let it go at that. Dal paid for the drinks and then went away in response to a telephone call from a sick woman. Thad and M. J. went out to sit in Thad's car.

"Hell of a world we live in," Thad began, despondently.

"Go on," M. J. urged. "You've got a woe. Spill it."

"Um huhm."

M. J. dropped the tone of levity. "I'd tell you if ever I wanted any help, Thad. Or even if I just wanted to talk."

Thad touched the other boy's knee in gesture of thanks. "I know it."

"Well?"

"Well, keep it under your hat, but Lillian promised to marry me. I'm not joking."

"No. But you aren't singing, either."

"That's the point I'm coming to."

"All right. So you're engaged." M. J. summed it up. "Maybe you have been so for quite a while. But now you've got doubts."

"How'd you know that?"

"I guessed. I keep my eyes open, mostly."

Thad nodded. They were silent for a long minute, man fashion.

"You—love the girl?" M. J. finally asked.

"Wouldn't I?"

"Yump."

"All right, then."

"You love her very deeply? And now I'm not joking. I mean, did you really go off the deep end, Thad?"

"The whole works, kid." He nodded again, grimly.

"Hmmm. I thought as much. I been looking on, maybe envying a little and sympathizing here lately. How much guts you got?"

That contemplated that. "I don't know. How you mean?"

"I think you're going to have to—to take it. To play the old part. There's precedent for it, I believe; in real life, as well as in the story books. Now you take—baseball—a sacrifice hit gets you out, but the other guy may score. See? And the team wins."

Thad's lips clamped tight and his eyes narrowed, but he nodded in understanding. M. J. didn't say any more; this quiet young man had depth anyway, sense enough to know when a job was done. A half minute passed. He glanced at Thad and in the dim light of the car here on Public Square saw there a reflection of infinite despair. Thad's chin was quavvering ever so little; with his thumb then he gestured toward the car door.

M. J. got out, squeezing his friend's wrist quickly in parting. Then he stood and stared after Thad as the car drove away. "It's a mistake," M. J. told himself miserably, "to say a strong man can't cry." Even his own throat felt a little choked.

Girlish shrieks and laughter emanated from the shrubbery that enclosed the Mayfield side lawn. Jason heard it and frowned; he thought he recognized one of the voices. To give himself ample excuse for investigating he made a tray of cold drinks and took it out there.

"Lawd Amighty!" he exclaimed, staring. "Miss Baby Doll, ma'am you ain't got no sense!"

"No, Jason."

"Here you is rompin, aroun' on yo' feets! You get back in that house befor' I has to whup you!"

It was mock discipline, fond discipline, but it was tinged with reality too. Baby Doll Mayfield had hung her head bandage on a bush and was playing a fast game of badminton with Jeannie Baughman. Apparently no catastrophe has resulted nor was about to, but the shooting was only 11 days past and Jason wanted due tribute paid to it.

Dutifully, therefore, the spirited girl took her bandage and adjusted it on her head again, as if it were a hat or a peasant handkerchief. She had contrived to cut the white material in a shape and twist that was actually becoming.

Still talking brightly with Jeannie, she went back inside the house and lay down on the chaise lounge, pulled a light blanket over her feet and resumed her role as invalid. Old Jason tucked her in. In all seriousness he felt her pulse, tested her forehead for possible fever, made her stick out her tongue. He shook his head ominously. He hadn't a symptom to cling to but he wouldn't admit it even to himself.

"I tells Dr. Watkins his own self on you," he threatened, and hobbled out of the room.

He had rocked down the hall and turned into the kitchen when the front door bell rang. Even though not fittingly dressed to be a butler at the moment, he went to answer. It was a delivery boy with a rather large package addressed to Baby Doll. He took that in and went on his way.

"Open it, Baby! Hurry!" Jeannie begged.

"Well I am, silly!"

"Whatever is it?"

"It's heavy. I believe it's—yes sir, it is. It's a box of candy, Jeannie! The expensive kind!" Hastily she inspected the address tag again. Unmistakably it was meant for her, not Lillian.

Tied to the inner ribbon over the cellophane was a dainty envelope containing a message. Baby Doll, bright-eyed, tore it open quickly. "Martin must have—" She left her sentence hanging as she read.

"Please, Baby Doll!" Jeannie bursting with interest.

"Oh goodness, Jeannie!"

"What is it? Who, I mean? From who?"

"Oh-h-h-h!" Baby Doll was squeezing every ounce of thrill.

"Is it from Martin Deale?"

"Jeannie—no! Guess who! You'd never in all the wide world! I—why I never was so surprised in all my li-i-fe!"

Patently Baby Doll was going to exact all possible tribute in jealous curiosity from her friend. She maintained the suspense.

"It's the nicest box of candy any man ever sent me!"

Jeannie wasn't whipped. "Did anybody ever send you one before?"

Baby Doll capitulated then. "Imagine—it's from Dal Tower!"

That really was something! Jeannie stared.

"Listen, Jeannie—what he says: 'Dear Miss Dorothy: I hope feelings everywhere have cooled so that I may speak now. And yet I hesitate to intrude again in person, wherefore I am sending this little token of gratitude for your having saved my life. I understand your motive well enough; you jumped more to save Martin than me, which is all to the good. But in any event it was a courageous and beautiful thing to do, and I shall never forget it. Dr. Watkins keeps me informed about your wound. I am happy to know it amounted to so little. Again—please accept my heart-felt thanks. Yours, Dallas Tower.' O-h-h-h-h-h, Jeannie!"

It was sufficient to lift the two 'tween-age friends all that day and longer. They read the note again and again. They telephoned it to other friends. Before sundown that day practically everybody who was anybody in town knew about it. Dal Tower, that good-looking young doctor. You know, the one who was rushing Lillian Mayfield, the one Martin Deale shot at when he hit Baby Doll. Goodness!

If Mrs. Millicent Mayfield had been any less strong of chartster she would surely have succumbed to what is known as a nervous breakdown. The state of her bank account and the constant possibility of oil on her lawn kept her up and going.

That same oil well, which just might lift her financial embarrassment, was also horrible in her sight. She took to going through her side yard and through Mrs. Frankie Haltom's property whenever she left home, to avoid walking right by the derrick and its machinery and men.

"That's being silly," Lillian chided her. "What's there is there, mother. You're just being an ostrich about it."

"Oh, dear."

"And anyway the engineer says there really is an excellent possibility of oil. They wouldn't have leased the land from you if they didn't think so, Thad says."

"I suppose so. If there is oil, then you and Thad—you can—how much longer will it take? The drilling, I mean?" Mrs. Mayfield got all her news of the well from Lillian.

"They're down 2,700 feet. They don't know how far they'll go."

"Aren't you buying anything for your trousseau, dear? I should think—"

"No. I'm busy now."

"What doing? You don't stay at home much."

Lillian didn't answer. She didn't want to get involved in personal talk. She didn't want to have to think about personal affairs, as a matter of fact, and especially did she not want to think about a trousseau.

Nevertheless she did slip into personal thinking while she was going this morning to the family car. She drove off on a mission of her own and she was distinctly unhappy, not about the mission but about herself, inside.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

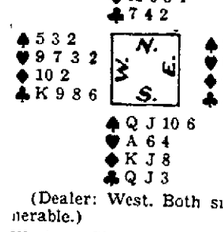
DON'T RESCUE THE FOE

IT IS ALL well and good for an ambulance driver to pick up one of the enemy who has been wounded, and take the poor devil to where he can receive merciful care. But to give him able first aid, and then send him back to his own outfit, ready to do some more shooting would hardly be in line with an ambulance man's job. So it is with a bridge player who during the bidding hears an opponent make a bid which he can double and set with disastrous effect. His job is not to make another bid and so rescue the bad bidder from his predicament. Double him, and set him all over the lot.



(Dealer: West. Both sides vulnerable.)

West	North	East	South
Pass	1 ♦	1 NT	(?)

What is it South did after East's 1-No Trump call? Dinged if we remember. We made no note of it, it was so terrible. It was either 2-diamonds or 2-Spades, and the side got into 3-No Trumps, making it with an extra trick, the way the play went.

South's job was clear-cut. How in the world could East, except with a rare freak, ever make any number of No Trumps if North had an opening bid? East and West had no suit to use as a rescue if doubled, and would have had to try to make the 1-No Trump. Natural play could be the spade Q to the K, heart Q to the K and A, heart 6 to the J, diamond 4 to the J, the diamond K, diamond A, spade A, spade 8 to the J and the spade 10, giving the defenders the first nine tricks and setting the contract three for a score of 800, much better than a mere game. Opportunity was knocking on South's door when East bid, but he couldn't hear.

Your Week-End Lesson.

Why are guarded kings, queens and jacks, or even unguarded ones, more valuable as prospective trick-takers in your hand after you have heard your partner make an opening bid, of either suit or No Trump? Can you set up several illustrations of the principle involved?

GALION UNIT OF O. E. S. HAS UNIQUE RITUAL

Services Held For Babies At Naomi Chapter's 46th Anniversary.

GALION—Unique and impressive was the dedication of 12 babies to the Order of Eastern Star, as a part of the celebration of Naomi chapter's 46th anniversary Friday night, when Worthy Grand Matron, Fairy B. Gingery of Columbus, was guest of honor.

The evening's service was preceded with a dinner, fall colors being used in the appointments and flowers on the tables which were centered with cornucopias from which poured fruits and vegetables.

Following the dinner, the chapter's choir sang and then officers and past matrons formed a court in honor of the worthy grand matron, Mrs Gingery at which time the past matrons of the chapter presented her with yellow chrysanthemums, and Doris Sickmiller sang "To You"

During the ceremony, ribbons in the Star colors were tied to the wrists of the babies, and each was presented with a toy Mothers in the group were presented with rosebuds The service closed with a selection sung by a trio composed of Mrs Harold Seemann, Mrs Budd Lisle and Mrs Carl Shaw

Mrs Roger Godfrey, worthy matron of the local chapter presented Mrs. Gingery with an honorary membership A gift from the chapter to Mrs Gingery was presented by the associate matron, Mrs Robert Resch This brought the evening's program to a close.

The occasion brought to Galion many distinguished guests besides worthy matrons and patrons from neighboring towns Guests of honor present besides Mrs Gingery included Mrs Margaret Engler of Sycamore grand representative of Montana, and her husband, Herman H Engler, Mrs Thelma B Hartman of Mansfield, deputy grand matron of District No 10 and her husband Virgil Hartman, Mrs Estella Beal of Bucyrus grand marshall of the grand chapter of the Eastern Star, and her husband Clem Beal who is grand royal arch captain of the grand chapter, R A M of Ohio, Mrs Roberta K Mindling of Beverly, Ohio grand warder of the grand chapter of Ohio, Elsie Howard of Findlay secretary of District No 10, Mrs Ed Boyer of Galion who is district president.

Mrs Walter Williams, sister of Mrs Godfrey, and Mrs D D Montoya both of Mansfield also were among the many visitors present.

forces, while the attackers carried gas bombs in addition to their infantry arms All of the troops engaged donned gas masks, and they were needed as the tear gas was real but mild

The "Black" troops forced their way into the fort and the umpires ruled they had succeeded in turning two of the massive 16-inch coast defense rifles on New York The guns fire 2,300 pound shells and the umpires estimated 30 or 40 rounds were fired into New York City

As the battle for possession of the fort went against the defenders, General Gage called for reinforcements from the New York state guard The guardsmen swarmed into their armories and formed into companies and then rushed to the battle lines in privately owned automobiles with police motorcycle men as escorts Regular army soldiers stationed at defense points in the city also were called

Trapped in the fort, the Black army troops were "annihilated" the umpires ruled following a two-hour battle

Not only was the city theoretically shelled during the fighting but several attacking planes succeeded in penetrating the anti-aircraft defenses of the city during the maneuver and "bombed" various sectors of the town.

The city fire and police departments and newly organized air raid wardens all took part in the war game' which was ruled highly satisfactory' by General Gage General Gage however expressed disappointment at the failure of dive bombers to take part in the 'attack' on Fort Tilden.

Tygers Trounce Wildcats 31 to 0 for Fourth Victory

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Coach Ben Schwartzwalder has turned the entire job of disciplining the Canton McKinley Bulldogs over to the Bulldogs. Says Ben: "I am a coach, not a policeman. You guys will have to govern your own behavior."

And so those guys got together and appointed their own policemen, a board of five players to adopt rules and see that they are enforced. But of course every guy on the squad is on his honor to see that the rules aren't broken.

If the rules should be broken, the board meets to mete out punishment to the culprit. Democracy comes to the gridiron.

The rules?

1—Be in bed no later than 10 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Sunday nights; Thursday at 9; Friday and Saturday at 12.

2—No smoking and no drinking.

3—All work while on practice field. Let's mean business because we play like we practice.

4—No horsing around in the locker room or elsewhere.

5—Be to practice on time ready to go.

6—Stay out of detention and other trouble in school. Set an example to other students. Be leaders, not laggers.

7—No talking while coach is explaining plays or demonstrating. Pay attention, it may help you later. Be alert.

8—Be in school every day and stay eligible. Be good students because some day you will be through school and looking for a job.

9—Listen to the quarterback in the huddle. He is absolute boss.

10—Don't attempt to steal any equipment.

11—Be gentlemen on the bus, on trips, and while eating. Let's reflect credit to ourselves and our school.

12—Lots of spirit and determination at all times.

13—Never quit under any circumstances. A quitter never wins—not even his own self respect.

14—Let's mean to be the best and never be satisfied with ourselves until we are.

15—Work hard—be something—have fun.

What? Nothing about dates, or rich foods? How could the boys have overlooked those training bugaboos? The rules are all right, I suppose, but they shouldn't be necessary. If a kid wants to play and wants to win bad enough, he'll keep 'em anyhow. And if he doesn't want to win he won't keep 'em, and somebody who does want to will be in his place.

Butler Loses To Freddies

Knox Countians Spoil Bulldog Homecoming.

BUTLER — Fredericktown celebrated Butler high school's Homecoming day game here yesterday with an 8-0 victory.

Catching a Butler man behind the goal in the first quarter they rang up their safety and with but 25 seconds to go Warner intercepted a Butler hope-and-hope-again pass and galloped over for the last six tallies.

During the rest of the game Butler hung up six first downs to Fredericktown's three, but was unable to score.

Mt. Vernon Trips Madison 19 to 0

Rams Threaten, But Fail to Find Pay Dirt

Hold N.C.O. League Club to Six Points for First Three Periods

By BUD SPRUNGER
(News-Journal Sport Writer)

MT. VERNON'S Yellow Jackets withstood any upset ideas the Madison Rams might have entertained last night and won 19-0 on their home field.

Able to advance by big chunks of yardage through the Madison line in the middle of the field but held near pay dirt, the Jackets tossed three passes for their scores.

First scoring threat, however, was made by the Rams. Falling on a Jacket fumble on the Mt. Vernon 35-yard-line, Don Stone made it possible. From there two healthy penalties and two slices by Harold Hammer netted the Rams two first downs and put the ball on the Jacket 12. There the Jackets stiffened and held.

From there the Jacket team rolled out its first touchdown. Four first downs resulting from runs by Bill Wright and Rouse took them to a first on the Ram 19. Held in the line for two plays, they threw an incomplete pass and then completed their second attempt in a brother act—Bill Wright to Ed Wright. Ed kicked the extra point.

At the end of the first quarter and the beginning of the second Madison marched from their own 45 to the Jacket 10 and then tossed two incomplete passes and took to futile dives at the line as Mt. Vernon held.

Taking possession on their own 20 Mt. Vernon started its second march, but this time met with a different story.

With a first down on the Rams 25-yard-stripe they suddenly met with Ram power and were stopped cold for four downs and spent the rest of the half fighting a Ram bid which ended in mid-field.

In the third quarter the Jackets met with the same story. Bounding along to the Ram five yard line, they were stopped cold for four downs by a fighting, driving Ram defense.

The last quarter however told a different yarn. After another repeat performance of losing the ball inside the Ram nine they came back on the fourth down their next opportunity with a Bill Wright to Kerin pass which scored the second touchdown.

Taking to the air the Rams advanced to the 50 after the touchdown and there Rouse intercepted a prayer pass and went on six plays to score again. The last score was made on a 19-yard Rouse to Mentis pass.

Best Ram play during the evening was turned in by 126-pound Harold Hammer. Throwing what weight he has the shifty and tough little half time and again messed up Jacket drives and fooled them with his quarterbacking.

Once on his own five he pulled a quarterback sneak through the center of a line and rambled 20 yards before being dragged down

Other good performances were made by all the Ram line, but in particular Joe Harfman. Getting into the game in the fourth quarter he made three clean tackles in a row to hold a Jacket drive.

Break Gives Gilead Game

Recovered Fumble Leads To Winning Touchdown.

BELLVILLE — Bellville high's Blue Jays came close to upsetting Mt. Gilead yesterday, leading 6 to 0 at the half, but the Mounts packed too much third period punch, scoring twice in that stanza for a 13 to 6 victory.

A pass from Leedy to Meyers gave Bellville a first down on the Mt. Gilead one yard line in the second quarter, Quarterback Dill plunged over for a touchdown.

In the same period, John Geyer, Gilead center, intercepted a pass and ran 50 yards to the Bellville two-yard stripe, but the Blue Jays held for downs.

A series of end sweeps by Mt. Gilead took the ball deep into Bellville territory in the third period, and Miller smashed off tackle for a touchdown, tying the score.

On the next kickoff Bellville fumbled, Mt. Gilead recovered, and went for another touchdown, Bob Corwin plunging over from the six. Corwin also bucked for extra point.

Fremont High Beats Redman Team 27-0

FOSTORIA — Engineering four power drives in the last three quarters of the game, the Fremont Ross high school gridders swamped Fostoria's Redmen 27-0.

Bob Hall scored the first touchdown with a 5-yard plunge completing a 55-yard drive early on the second period. As the second stanza ended Wisbon climaxed a 55-yard march with an eight yard touchdown run.

Hall scored twice more in the second half, once on an eight-yard run and once on a 16. Both scores ended 45-yard drives.

Pros Play First Home Game In Four Weeks Tonight

Making their first appearance in four weeks before the home fans, the City News pros should be in for a hearty welcome tonight at Madison high field when they tangle with the Toledo pros at 8:15 p. m.

After winning their home opener in easy fashion from the Lorain Ex-Hi club, the Mansfield club had schedule trouble the following week and were out of action. Two weeks ago they traveled to Akron for a very respectable showing against the South Akron Awnings who defeated them by only 18 to 6.

Last Saturday night they were all set to show Mansfield fans their improved style of play against the St. Joe Athletic club of Fort Wayne, Ind., but a three-day rain washed out the game. Even if they had decided to play before a handful of fans, the Madison high officials wouldn't have cared much about having two heavyweight teams tearing up the mud on their gridiron.

So tonight the pros try again, and they believe they are bringing a team capable of furnishing a real test. The Toledo club won its only game thus far, beating Lansing, Mich., 13 to 6.

While the Akron Beacon-Journal praised the Mansfield team as a game, dogged club, and acknowledged that the City News outplayed the Awnings in the second half, it remained for the Pittsburgh Pace Athletic club to prove last Sunday just how good the Mansfielders are.

* * *

The Pittsburghers came to Akdon with a good reputation, but they were snowed under by the Awnings 39 to 0. The Awnings didn't run that way against the battling Mansfield pros.

Probable lineups for tonight's game are:

Ohio Gridders Play Outsiders

Three Buckeye Elevens Keep Clean Slates.

(By Associated Press)

Ohio's collegiate football prestige undergoes a severe test today as 10 of the 21 squads in action engage out-of-state opponents.

Headed by the Dayton University Flyers who go up against the hightly-rated Tennessee Volunteers at Knoxville, four other Ohio elevens appear on foreign soil while five others entertain invaders from neighboring states.

Three of the state's gridiron powerhouses — Ohio Northern, Wittenberg and Youngstown—kept their slates clean with easy victories over "outsiders" on last night's seven-game program.

Ohio Northern scored in every period for a 25-6 victory over Albion, Mich., the first defeat for the Michiganders on their home gridiron since 1938, and the Wittenberg Lutherans scored two touchdowns in the second period for a 14 to 0 decision over Lawrence Tech of Michigan at Springfield. Youngstown beat invading Illinois Wesleyan 25-14 for its third victory of the season, scoring all 25 points in the first half.

The Rough Riders of Case produced the major fireworks last night, attaining a 7-6 victory over Kent State and dimming the Golden Flashes' hopes for a state championship. Bob Melreit's conversion after the Rough Riders' first-period touchdown proved the margin of victory as the Flashes pushed across a touchdown in the fourth quarter but failed to make the extra point. It was the second win in a row for Case.

Muskingum and Western Reserve scored one-touchdown victories, the Muskies downing Findlay 12 to 6 in an Ohio Conference tilt at New Concord and Western Reserve edging the Akron University Zippers by the some count at Akron.

Defiance had an easy time with Ashland's undermanned outfit as backfielder Switzer's running and passing helped bring four touchdowns in the last three periods to win, 26 to 7. Switzer scored two touchdowns and passed for a third as Coach Tony Lonero's squad suffered its second straight loss.

CLEVELAND CENTRAL LOSES FOURTH STRAIGHT

CLEVELAND — Central high's hapless eleven here lost its fourth straight game of the season as John Hay high topped Central's effort 25-0 last night.

So far this season Central gridders have not scored a single tally although opponents have rung up 149 markers against them.

NEWCOMERS TOUGHER

Coach Frank Leahy of Notre Dame claims that first generation Americans are tougher and make better football players than lads whose parents were born in the country.

Paces Tygers

ADAM BRANDT

Hard-driving little Adam Brandt led Mansfield high to victory at Newark last night, the Tyger fullback scoring three touchdowns, one on a 42-yard break through the line, one on a 27-yard run after a lateral from Bill Doolittle, and the third on a five-yard line smash.

Hipp Rolls 660 To Pace Moose

Six-hundred scores were dropping like tenpins in the Moose bowling league last night, with Ferrell Hipp setting the pace with a sparkling 660 on strings of 233-226-201.

Henry Michaels rolled 190-205-246-641 for high game and second high total. Other 600 scores were rolled by Art Hilborn 201-193-228—622, and Charles Altman, 213-233-175—621.

Pilgrims rolled 827-859-954—2.640 for high game and high total.

Clarence Windsor showed the way to Dominion Electric keglers last night at Colony alleys on a 608 total with games of 232-176-198. His 232 was high game.

Other 200 games were rolled by D. Jordan, 203, and H. Blackford, 206.

Johnny Carr led the Westinghouse "D" bowling league at Colony alleys last night with high total of 547 and high game of 211.

Also rolling 200 games were: Tony Santoro, 207, and W. Hastings, 204.

Warren Trips Canton Bulldog

Massillon Tiger Claws Alliance In 46-6 Win.

By JOHN BARRINGTON
(INS Sports Writer)

Warren high school today loomed as the most outstanding threat to the six-year supremacy of Massillon high's Tigers.

The Presidents chalked up their fourth straight victory last night, but what made the win particularly impressive was the opposition downed by the team which meets Massillon in three weeks. Warren tripped Canton McKinley, also unbeaten previously, 13 to 7.

Massillon, piling up its 37th consecutive triumph, spilled another school, Alliance, from the select list of unbeaten teams. And the game wasn't even close, Massillon winning, 46 to 6.

The Warren and Massillon victories coming on the heels of the controversy between the two schools over the right of Warren scouts to take moving pictures of the Tigers in action, presage a seasonal high spot when the teams clash on Oct. 31.

Mansfield, another club looking forward to its clash with Massillon, kept its hand in the race by drubbing Newark, 31 to 0. It was the first loss for the Wildcats, who had been tied once. Middletown added to its growing reputation as the outstanding southern Ohio team by beating Columbus Central, 13 to 0.

Undefeated Upper Sandusky trounced another previously unhumbled foe, Crestline, 34 to 6. Russell Wolfe of Upper added four more touchdowns to bring his state-leading total to 80 points.

Dover, Tiffin Junior Order and Wooster all stretched their winning skeins. Dover continued to run away with the Central Ohio league race, which it entered only this year, handing Cambridge a 10-to-0 loss. Junior Order licked Tiffin Calvert, 19 to 6, and Wooster downed Akron Buchtel, 9 to 0.

East Liverpool was the victim of one of the biggest upsets of the day when New Philadelphia humbled the Potters, 13 to 7, spoiling a perfect slate.

Mansfield Goal Still Remains Uncrossed

Newark Shows First Offense Displayed by Tyger Opponents

By REX HESS
(News-Journal Sport Editor)

MANSFIELD'S ferocious Tygers rolled to their fourth straight victory last night at Newark, piling up a 31 to 0 score against the sternest competition they have met thus far.

While twisting the tail of the Newark variety of Wildcat, the Tygers added up 16 first downs to seven, but the seven marked the first semblance of an offense Coach Paul Snyder's gridders have met this season.

Newark had some fast backs who were dangerous any time they began to get in the open, but the smooth-functioning Tygers played on the old rule that a good offense is the best defense, and took care of the Newark threat by keeping possession of the ball through the greater part of the game.

In four games the Tygers' goal line is still uncrossed, while Mansfield has marked up a total of 142 points. Next Friday night at Stadium field they tangle with another variety of Wildcat from Springfield, and this one, undefeated to date, as was Newark up to last night, should prove tougher.

The first quarter last night saw Mansfield plays clicking with the precision of clockwork, and the Tygers clearly demonstrated their superiority in the first few minutes of play.

Working a reverse on the opening kickoff, Bill Doolittle returned the kick 25 yards to his own 45 yard line. And from there Mansfield marched to a touchdown. On the first play Ken Krupp dashed 12 yards off tackle for a first down. Adam Brandt broke through the line for seven yards, and on the next play marked up another first down.

Krupp hit the line for seven yards. Mansfield was penalized five yards for offside, but Krupp went off tackle for a third first down on the Newark 21-yard line.

Condon got away for six more yards, and Lightnin' Jones, the first time he carried the ball, went 15 yards for a touchdown on a reverse off tackle. Brandt kicked the extra point and it was 7 to 0.

Newark failed to gain after taking the next kickoff, and Jury punted 38 yards to the Mansfield 27. Doolittle and Krupp in three plays brought the ball to midfield for a first down, and two plays later Brandt got loose through the line, stepped through the Newark secondary and raced 42 yards for a touchdown. This time his kick for point was wide, and it was 13 to 0 at the end of the quarter.

Near the end of the first period Mansfield started a march from its own 40 that wound up in a touchdown early in the second quarter. Krupp made one first down and Brandt another before the period ended.

Starting the second quarter, Jones, Condon and Brandt reeled off enough yardage for a first down on the Newark 22. Brandt got away for eight yards and Condon for 10 and a first down on the four yard line. Brandt hit the line for two yards, and Condon went off tackle for a touchdown. Once more Brandt's kick was wide and it was 19 to 0, and that's the way the score stood at the half.

Newark threatened once in the second period, taking the next kickoff on its own 37, and traveling in two first downs to the Mansfield 22. But four more plays netted them just one yard, and the Tygers took over on the 21. On the first play Condon took the ball out of danger with an 18 yard run on a cutback off tackle, and Brandt picked up 12 more through the line. A 12-yard gain by Jones was nullified by a clipping penalty, but Condon went around end for 14 as the half ended.

The Wildcats started to roll with a quick opening play off the weak side tackle in the third period, but Brandt stopped them by intercepting a pass in midfield. Mansfield went from there down to the Newark five where the Wildcats held.

Shortly afterward a short punt by Jury was downed on the Newark 37. Krupp and Brandt made one first down. And then a lateral pass from Doolittle to Brandt was good for 27 yards and a touchdown. Again Brandt's kick was wide, and it was 25 to 0.

* * *

In the last quarter a pass from Doolittle to Bob Winbigler was good for 65 yards and a first down on the Newark 15. Winbigler was away for a touchdown on the play, but a last, despairing tackle barely got him by the tip of his right toe and he stumbled to earth. The Mansfield offense jammed up for three plays, but on the fourth a Krupp to Jones lateral was good for 10 yards and a first down on the five. And Brandt bucked over for a touchdown from there, making the final score 31 to 0.

It was Brandt's third touchdown of the evening.

In the Newark press box all evening there was nothing but praise for the hard charging, blocking and tackling of the Mansfield line, the driving leather lugging of Brandt, and Krupp's shifty ball carrying.

PAM—Encouraging Sign By A. W. Brewerton

WE WERE WALKING DOWN THE STREET, COLONEL, WHEN—RIGHT OUT OF A CLEAR SKY, YOU MIGHT SAY—HE SAID PEGGY, AND STARTED TO TELL ME SOMETHING—10-11
HE DIDN'T EVEN NOTICE HE'D SAID IT, TILL I STOPPED HIM, MADE HIM SAY IT AGAIN, KEEP SAYING IT! IT SEEMED TO COME EASY, NATURAL TO HIM, AND SUDDENLY HE HOOKED IT UP WITH MILLER—PEGGY MILLER!
YOU DON'T SAY?
BUT THAT'S AS FAR AS HE COULD GET, THOUGH HE TRIED TO ASSOCIATE THE NAME WITH SOMETHING MORE! BUT I THINK THAT WAS A LOT, DON'T YOU, COLONEL?
YES, IT WAS A VERY ENCOURAGING SIGN! NO DOUBT THE NAME OF SOME ONE HE'D KNOWN!
BUT THERE ARE PROBABLY HUNDREDS OF PEGGY MILLERS IN THE COUNTRY.
PEGGY! PEGGY MILLER! THAT'S RIGHT, I'M SURE OF IT! PEGGY! PEGGY—CA-CAREY!! GOSH! THERE'S THAT NAME AGAIN!

NEED $100? HERE'S WHAT TO DO

Tell us how much you need, $20 to $500; how much you can repay monthly; and answer a few simple questions.

Loans made three ways: (1) on signature; (2) on car; (3) on furniture. No endorsers. Friends or relatives are not told. Fair treatment in case of sickness or unemployment. Payments include charges of 2% monthly on balances of $300 or less and ½% monthly on any remainder—the same rate to everyone. Nothing else to pay. To apply—Phone, write or visit office. Money ready next day—or sooner if necessary.

BIG FISH

OROVILLE, Cal.—(U.P.)—Charlie Onyett got more than his money's worth when he landed a three-pound rainbow trout 20½ inches long, in the Feather river near here. The fish had an artificial red ant and about a foot of leader hanging from its mouth.

POLICE LOSE SEDANS

BOSTON—(U.P.)—This city's police department will be the first in the nation to use coupes exclusively instead of sedans as cruising cars. Twenty-three aluminum-colored coupes have been ordered in an economy move.

AT LAST! ORE FROM THE MINE! FULL PRODUCTION ONCE MORE! FOR A WHILE I SUSPECTED THAT CHAP SCUTTLE OUT THERE AT THE MINE—THOUGHT HE WAS UP TO SOMETHING—
10-11 41
BUT I GUESS I HAD HIM ALL WRONG—HE'S SURE DOING A GOOD JOB NOW—MR. WARBUCKS WILL BE GLAD WHEN HE HEARS-HM-M-WONDER WHERE MR. WARBUCKS IS, ANYWAY-
SAID HE'D PROBABLY STAY ON HIS CAMPING TRIP QUITE A WHILE—BUT THERE SHOULD HAVE BEEN SOME WORD FROM HIM BY NOW—EH? WHAT IS IT?
THIS! THIS WIRE, SIR! IT JUST CAME!
HAROLD GRAY
WHAT? SIGNED FORTY-FOUR JOHN! GREAT SCOTT! IS THIS A GAG? THIS IS GHASTLY—I CAN'T BELIEVE IT—STILL!
IT WAS SENT FROM UTE PASS SIR-

THE NEBBS—The Hit of the Show By Sol Hess

MISS APPLEBY, THE PRUDE SOCIETY LEADER OF NORTHVILLE WAS SHOCKED AT CLEO'S COSTUME AND ACT AND A BIT JEALOUS OF HER GREAT SUCCESS
10-11
BOYS, I CAN'T TELL YOU HOW EMBARRASSED I AM OVER LAST NIGHT'S ENTERTAINMENT AND I FEEL WE OWE YOU AN APOLOGY
OH, YOU WEREN'T AS BAD AS THAT—WE WERE ABLE TO TAKE IT—WE FEEL YOU DID YOUR BEST
NO, I MEAN THE VULGAR DISPLAY OF THAT NEBB GIRL—SHE GAVE ME NO IDEA OF WHAT HER ACT WOULD BE. I HAD NO IDEA SHE WOULD MAKE A BURLESQUE SHOW OUT OF IT THAT WAS TH' BEST ACT I COULDN'T GET ENOUGH OF HER
SHE WAS GREAT—SHE PUT ALL THE PEP IN THE SHOW—SHE TURNED A FLOP INTO A SUCCESS
DID YOU HEAR THAT CAPTAIN SONG SHE SANG? SHE USED TO RUN AROUND WITH CAPTAIN ASHBY OF COMPANY "I"
HE'LL NEVER LIVE THAT DOWN—I WONDER IF HE HEARD IT. I HOPE SO. HE'S A STIFF GUY. HE'D MAKE A STATUE LOOK LIKE AN ACROBAT

I HAD A DISTURBING DREAM LAST NIGHT, UNCLE BIM—I CAN'T RECALL THE DETAILS, BUT ANDY WAS WANDERING IN A KIND OF LABYRINTH, UNABLE TO GET OUT—10-11
HOW DISTRESSING! MAYBE YOU'RE NOT VERY WELL—DON'T YOU THINK YOU HAD BETTER SEE MY PHYSICIAN?
OF COURSE, NOT—I'M PERFECTLY HEALTHY! IT'S PROBABLY JUST THE REACTION FROM WORRY OVER ANDY'S SUDDEN DISAPPEARANCE—I'M ALL RIGHT NOW THAT I GOT HIS WIRE FROM CHIZZELTON—
GUS EDSON
CHIZZELTON, EH? I WONDER WHAT HE'S DOING THERE? HE NEVER MENTIONED THAT CITY TO ME—IS THAT TELEGRAM THE ONLY CONTACT YOU'VE HAD WITH HIM?
YES—BUT I'M SURE HE'S OK—TILDA'S HINDU BOY FRIEND READ MY PALM AND TOLD ME ANDY WAS THERE IN CHIZZELTON ON A BIG BUSINESS VENTURE—SURELY YOU DON'T BELIEVE IN FORTUNE TELLERS—WHAT? DO YOU MEAN TO SAY THAT MAN KNEW WHERE ANDY WAS?

LABOR TROUBLE ACTS AS STOCK MARKET HALTER

Oil Producers Ask Increase In Prices; Dealings Prove Irregular.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Stocks followed irregular trends in quiet market dealings today.

Serving as a depressant were the increased labor difficulties in defense industries, including the shutdown of the vital Spicer plant in Toledo.

Interest in oil stocks was heightened by a request from

MARKETS CLOSED

(By United Press)

Major security and commodity markets generally will be closed Monday, Oct. 13, in the United States in observance of Columbus Day. Livestock yards and a few minor produce markets will operate as usual.

Midcontinent producers to the Office of Price Administration for a general increase in the price of petroleum.

This followed closely on the approval by the O. P. A. of an increase in the price of zinc, and was regarded in boardrooms as a possible forerunner of rises in various strategic raw materials.

Traders noted an eight-months' earnings statement by Western Union showing a profit for the period equal to $4.54 a share compared with $1.77 in the like part of 1940.

MAPS CIVILIAN DEFENSE PLAN

Committee to Make Survey, Organize Volunteer Corps For Emergency Work.

"Although we have a good number of doctors and nurses," said Kalbfleisch, "they could not possibly cope with a bombing or attack or any wholesale outbreak of incendiary fires in the city. A civilian volunteer corps would be needed in such emergencies."

Kalbfleisch pointed out that the American Legion has already enrolled more than 700 Richland county World war veterans as being prepared for defense emergencies. He indicated that this group could be used as the nucleus for the civilian defense organization.

The local commitee will consult with federal and state defense heads before going ahead with its plan. Kalbfleisch said that the regional civilian defense office had promised to send a representative here very soon.

One of the biggest obstacles, according to Kalbfleisch, will be the raising of funds to handle expenses of the civilian defense effort. Neither the federal or state governments had made any financial provision for the work as yet.

Committee members will be assigned to head different divisions such as fire watchers, air raid wardens and first aid workers after conferences with the state and national groups.

Kalbfleisch said the committee's greatest task will be in convincing the people that "although an attack may not be imminent, it would be far safer to prepare for one at present than to wait until it is too late."

PUTS CITY IN SPECIAL CLASS

in the nation which had been certified to the war department for conversion to the manufacture of munitions.

C. L. Van Derau, manager of manufacturing at the Westinghouse, said he had received no word from Washington on the attempt to avert unemployment by converting the Westinghouse ironer and washer production facilities to munitions work.

Keenan's announcement today in respect to special consideration for Mansfield industries indicated that the firms here which are hardest hit by the curtailment of domestic production may be in line for a greater number of defense orders to keep their workers busy.

Good news for the building supply industry was contained in a statement issued today by Charles F. Palmer, defense housing co-ordinator, who predicted that the defense housing program can be carried out as originally planned before it was curtailed by the OPM.

Under the original plan, Mansfield was to receive several hundred housing units for defense workers. No definite approval of the plan as it affects the city has been received, however, although the OPM has approved the construction of 300,000 defense housing units for the nation by next June 30.

"If a person wants to build a commercial or non-defense residential structure, it's my understanding that if he has the materials he can go ahead," Palmer said.

He said many builders who would be affected by the construction curtailment order would be able to continue in business because of the large amount of alterations and repair business they are certain to receive.
